Silk Notice!

I Propose to Show You this Season
Beginning With Tomorrow,
The Largest Stock of Silks Ever Shown Here!

ALSO!

The Best Values in Silks Ever Offered Here!
Black Silks a Specialty!

I Want You to Read This Carefully!

It Will Pay You to Do So!

My Line of Black Dress Silks Ranges in Prices
From 50c a Yard to $3 a Yard.
The Variety is therefore Unmatchable!
NOW, HERE'S TH POINT!
I Guarantee the Durability of Every Piece of Black Silk
Which you may buy from me, at and above 90 cents a yard!
THIS MEANS SIMPLY
That I will replace any of the goods as above enumerated, if they fail to wear satisfactory!
This is no "galvanized" imitation of somebody else's plan! Yet, I will do just what I propose!
Now, Why shall I not sell Everybody their Black Silks?
I'll Do It!
Just as Certainly as the Sun Shines---if their Judgment Does Not Fail Them!

Keely and "Kloaks"! John Keely sold last season more cloaks than any three of his competitors. Why? Because, as is the case now, his stock is the largest and most varied, his styles the best and most "distingue," and his prices are things unheard of elsewhere! Examine his stock of cloaks before you buy a garment--that's all!

JACOBS'
DRUG STORE

[Extract from the Evening Capitol, September 25th, one of the best evening papers in the south.]
JACOBS' PHARMACY.
Why This Drug House Has Done a Flourishing Business.
It has often been wondered why such crowds are seen in Jacobs' Pharmacy.
A reporter stepped into the establishment this morning and found the usual large number of customers. After a short talk with the proprietor, the news gatherer obtained a few facts that plainly showed why people trade with Jacobs in preference to other druggists.
About three years ago Mr. Jacobs came to Atlanta to engage in the drug business. He found that all the druggists had formed a ring and had pledged themselves to sell all patent medicines at advertised card prices.
Mr. Jacobs would not enter into the ring, because he did not think it just to the trading public. These high prices were placed on patent medicines when the stamp act was in force, and when the duty was removed the retailer was benefited, but would not share that benefit with the customer.
When Jacobs' Pharmacy was started, the very first thing that was done was to reduce the price of all patent medicines, and from that day the success of the house was assured.
There is just this about Mr. Jacobs's business He is not obliged to make one hundred per cent on every prescription in order to pay expenses. His business is large enough for him to make, as other merchants, ten to fifteen per cent, and clear a good profit.
This is the history of the success of "Jacobs's Pharmacy."
A few prices, it will amaze you to compare these with the prices you are paying, unless you trade with

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

QUALITY P PURITY NOT QUANTITY. Trade Mark. On Every Bottle.

THE BEST TONIC.

This medicine combines Iron with pure vegetable tonics, and is invaluable for Diseases peculiar to Women, and all who lead sedentary lives. It Enriches and Purifies the Blood, Stimulates the Appetite, Strengthens the Muscles and Nerves—in fact, thoroughly Invigorates.

Clears the complexion, and makes the skin smooth. It does not blacken the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—all other Iron medicines do.

Mrs. Elizabeth Baird, 74 Farwell Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., says, under date of Dec. 26th, 1884: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters, and it has been more than a doctor to me, having cured me of the weakness ladies have in life. Also cured me of Liver Complaint, and now my complexion is clear and good. Has also been beneficial to my children."

Mrs. Louisa C. Braggdon, East Lockport, N.Y., says: "I have suffered untold misery from Female Complaints, and could obtain relief from nothing except Brown's Iron Bitters."

TANSY PILLS!

Perfectly safe and always effectual. Never fail to afford speedy and certain relief. Particulars (sealed) 4c. Wilcox Specific Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Captain C. Thomas Swift.

I presume no person will deny that Swift's Specific is more widely heard of than any medicine that ever claimed the attention of mankind.

True, its manufacture and its active operations are yet restricted to America, but that only makes America the heart from which this vital fluid is pulsed out through the arteries of a sentient world.

Yes the sun never sets on Swift's Specific, and its "going forth" may be compared to the movements of that Oriental bird which is said to feed and sleep and live forever on the wing.

Under these circumstances we find no cause for surprise in the universal inquiry: "Who is Swift?" and no reason why the question should remain longer unanswered."

I have known "Swift" ever since he buttoned on his first suspenders. I knew his parents and kindred in the long ago, and enjoyed the hospitality of his father's home when "Tom" was but a "broth of a boy."

I also lived in Houston county when the Indians were coming and going, saw them occasionally and slept under the roof where, I was afterwards told, they left the formula of S. S. S. I was told this by a person who had no connection with Captain Swift, and no interest in his fortune.

I know the biography of the man and the history of the medicine, and without reward or the hope thereof, without any solicitation from him or any reference to the S. S. S, further than it bears upon the story of his life, I now comply with the earnest and universal demand of the public and furnish this brief

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF CAPTAIN CAARLES THOMAN SWIFT.

C. T. Swift was born near Madison, Ga., in Morgan county. His grandfather, Thomas Swift moved to that county from Virginia many years ago, and, after a protracted life devoted to heroic struggles and Christian duties, died, leaving his family in comfortable circumstances. Judge Wm. T. Swift, his eldest son, is the father of Thomas; his mother's maiden name was Elizabeth Furlow; she is a sister of Colonel T. M. Furlow, of Americus, who, in 1863, was a formidable competitor of the Hon. Joseph E. Brown for governor of Georgia.

When Thomas was three years old, his parents moved to Alabama, and settled near Salem, where they remained seven years. At this place, at the age of five years, the callow pharmacist buckled on his first satchel and started to school to a Mr. Dodson, who made his academy a Babel by the old fashioned plan of studying aloud. It was under the inspiring music of Mr. Dodson's switch that "Tom" took his first lesson in dancing, and so vivid were the impressions of those early events that even now he sees the benignant face of that beloved teacher every time he goes to sleep on an overloaded stomach. On such occasions he generally wakes to find himself singing:

"Thy bright smiles haunts me still,"

Mr. Dodson taught two years and was succeeded by a Mr. Lyons, who kept school but a short time. He was followed by Miss Yates, a northern lady who is yet living.

Judge Swift then owned a tanyard in partner ship with Mr. Nathan Aldridge. The tanyard was three miles from the judge's residence. He rode a mare to the tanyard every morning; sometimes leaving her six months colt in the pasture and sometimes letting it follow. Tom had petted the colt, lifted its fore feet and led it about by the mane until he considered it a model of ductility and submissiveness. One day, in his seventh year, he found the colt alone in its usual grazing quarters and decided to introduce a new feature in the programme by making a tour of the pasture on horseback. With no bridle, no saddle; nothing to hold on to but a duck-legged undeveloped sample of a mane, he sprang from a stump and landed on the back of his pet. The colt was surprised at this performance. "Surprised" does not express it, nor do all all the words in all the languages express the astonishment of that "leetle hoss." He leaped the fence like a deer and without inquiring about the roads broke through woods and fields, over ditches and logs, broke, yea, shot himself at the tanyard. Tom pressed his little stomach to the colt's withers, tried to tangle his feet in its flanks, and tried, or would have tried to tie his arms in a hard knot around its neck. To let go or to hold on as equally dangerous. In either event he had no leisure to calculate where he would probably land or where he'd sail to. Fortunately the little fellow never thought of praying. He only knew two prayers, "Now I lay me down to sleep," and "Lord, make us thankful for what we're about to receive." Neither of these would suit his case, and it was fortunate that he was not at this critical moment embarrassed with the necessity of religious, on the top of other very active exercises.

On, on, on went the hurricane colt, and where the ground was hard and unobstructed his rapidity was such that his legs looked like so many knitting needles.

Tom stuck closer than a postage stamp or a porous plaster, and the only danger was that a collision would occur or the hide of the colt would slip. So, after what seemed to be about fifty years, Tom heard the friendly whinny of the mare and proceedings were amicably adjusted by the "whoas" of the workmen at the tanyard. Tom never afterwards wanted to join the cavalry; for on that occasion his father mustered him out of service with a mustard that burned.

From Salem, Judge Swift moved to Perry, Houston county, Georgia, where he yet resides. Tom went to school here five years to Mr. Jim Dunham and two years to Professor J. E. Croslin.

There is but little of interest to the readers in those years of study, when the mind was awakened to the great duties of life and all its energies silently enlisted in preparing for the important future. To the student, that period is full of excitement, with its struggles, its triumphs and its disappointments; to the observer, it is full of monotony.

Thomas was now storing his mind with useful knowledge and laying the foundation of a remarkable and most successful career.

During this time he grew to be a stout, healthy, boy.

Had Captain Swift lived in obscurity, had his fate been to pass through the Horn Gate, instead of the Ivory, he would still have been a man to command attention, a man to be looked at and listened to, a man to attract, to move, to impress.

His father was in easy circumstances, but young Swift was ambitious and whilst yet a boy commenced to battle for himself. For awhile he clerked for Messrs. Granberry & Rawson of Americus, afterwards for Mr. Joel Mann of Perry, and at the breaking out of the war he was with Messrs. Northern & Shivers in Sparta. In all these engagements he made a reputation as a youth of judgment, practical sense, a talent for drawing trade, an aptness in learning the details of business and an unfaltering devotion to the interests of his employers.

In 1861 Mr. Swift enlisted as a private in the First Georgia Volunteers, under Colonel Ramsey, of Columbus, and remained in ranks until the regiment was mustered out of service in 1862 He then joined the Montgomery Battalion (Artillery) where he served to the end of the war with the rank of captain.

After the surrender Captain S returned to Perry and began a small grocery business on a capital of $200. In the back room of this store, in a common wash pot during 1865, he first began his manufacture of the S. S. S. The reader will probably think I ought to go back and relate everything connected with the origin and antecedent progress of this medicine. Reader, let me remind you that I am not now advertising S. S. S. I am but writing a biographical sketch of Captain S., the man who has brought and still brings that great Elixir before the public The S. S. S with its wonderful, wonderful history, will be commented on, not because it is for sale, but because it is interwoven with the sketch. I am writing "interwoven" with so close a texture that, like the image of Medusa on the shield of Phidias, to erase the one would be to ruin the other. The grocery proved to be a success. Trade increased, business became brisk and every indication pointed to the necessity of more house-room. But the medicine outgrew the store. Drummers from every quarter of the country tasted it, tested it and went away to spread abroad the story of its virtues. A negro presided over the washpot and $5 00 per quart was the price, and yet the demand was soon immeasurably ahead of the possibility of supply Under the circumstances the store was abandoned and captain Swift moved eight miles from Perry, procured a syrup kettle and devoted his whole time to the manufacture of S. S. S. But people would advertise the medicine anyhow and the blood would be purified and the patients would be cured and soon the capacity of the syrup kettle was found altogether inadequate to supply the popular demand.

Captain S. was now at the end of his row. To increase the number of syrup kettles would but increase existing embarrassments and advertise his inability to meet the wants of the people in the sale of his own medicine.

He tried long and earnestly to interest men of capital in giving the medicine a larger sphere and a more extensive manufacture. With this purpose in view he made propositions to quite a number of moneyed men, North and South; and visited New York and other financial centers His efforts were unavailing. The medicine was fated to remain in the background until it became the arbiter of its own destiny. It was not the representations of Capt. S., but the name of S. S S. that invoked the aid of Messrs. Rankin & Lamar Swift had about ceased to hope for assitance from any source whatever, and was hovering over his kettles when the eyes of the present company were directed to the marvelous effects of the medicine and its phenomenal popularity.

That was, I think, in 1879. A laboratory with the machinery necessary for a rapid manufacture of the medicine was erected at a cost of $100,000. Steam, with its tremendous energy, now reaches out to the afflicted thousands of bottles every day, and still, I understand, the demand calls for yet additional means of manufacture. Twenty years ago Capt. S. was poor and needed to struggle; now he is rich and might well afford to rest, but that the suffering of this and other nations look largely to him for relief.

One circumstance causes me to predict that Capt. S is now but in the beginning of his fortune, his medicine only in the morning of its history. Everywhere I go I hear of unadvertised and remarkable cures effected by "Swift's Specific," and this is compelled to be the experience of every man who travels and talks. For example, I was going in a buggy to town (Senola) a few nights ago with Mr. John McKnight, when the conversation turned to the possibility of curing cancers.

"They can be cured," said he. "I cured one, a genuine, well developed, long standing cancer, and it's been well several years, and the former victim is stout and healthy."

"How did you cure it?" I asked.

"I cured it with S. S. S."

"Did you inform Swift of the cure?"

"Why, no; what's the use? Swift knows his medicine will cure cancers."

This incident is one of the numberless prophecies that are daily predicting the future of Swift's Specific. I might go much further with this branch of the subject—might show the wonderful growth of the business—might show the expense in 1879 at $30,000, and in 1886 of $250,000. I might enlarge upon these and many other facts, were I writing an advertisement, which I again assert I am not. I am not writing an advertisement and though the medicine is a vital part of Captain S.'s biography, I shall now bid adieu to that vital part and "throw physic to the dogs."

On May 4th, 1880, Captain S. was married to Miss Lena Burckhardt, of Atlanta, a lady of rare accomplishments, and more than all, a handsome, pure, lovely woman. "She is the daughter of G. A. Burckhardt, Esq., one of Atlanta's oldest and best citizens." Their union has been blessed with three pretty, interesting little girls. I speak the words of soberness and truth when I say that earth has not had a happier home than theirs since Adam left the bowers of Eden.

Silence rests upon these happy wedded years. There is no hum of the bees while they gather honey; and so my task is completed.

I shall not submit this manuscript to Captain S. If after publication he sees fit to adopt it in the family of his advertisements, I will not object. If he becomes offended, I shall regret that it has been written. If he pursues neither course, I will at least enjoy the satisfaction of knowing I have contributed my mite towards the gratification of public curiosity. Good-bye. "KIT" WARREN.

THE TWO DANS.

One Negro Impersonates Another in Albany, Georgia.

ALBANY, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Dan Davis, colored, brought two bales of cotton to our market and upon arriving in the city stored them in the warehouse of Muse & Brown. After delivering the cotton, Dan went away to attend to some other business, and said that he would return for the receipts. Another negro was standing near when Dan left his cotton, and, strange enough, he bore close resemblance to him. This negro decided he would attempt to impersonate Dan and with this resolve he walked into the office and called for the receipts. The unsuspecting clerk delivered them, whereupon the thief sold the cotton and "skipped." When the real Dan returned to the warehouse and found out the status of affairs he immediately instituted a search for the absconder. Marshal Westbrooke, assisted by Bailiff Cooper, at last found him at the creek, about two miles from the city. They brought him to town and incarcerated him in the county jail, as a punishment for his misdemeanor.

All "Played Out."

"Don't know what ails me lately. Can't eat well,—can't sleep well. Can't work, and don't enjoy doing anything. Ain't really sick, and I really ain't well. Feel all kind o' played out, someway." That is what scores of men say every day. If they would take Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" they would soon have no occasion to say it. It purifies the blood, tones up the system and fortifies it against disease. It is a great anti-bilious remedy as well.

THE USE OF HIS PEN

Got Prince Small Into Eight Years of Hard Work in the Penitentiary.

CARNESVILLE, Ga., October 2—[Special.]—Prince Small, colored, the negro who has been in jail here for some time past for forgery, was tried yesterday and found guilty in one case and to the second charge he plead guilty. He was sentenced to four years' imprisonment in each case and will wear the stripes for eight years to come. This is the only felony conviction for the present term of the court.

Posey Guest was put on his trial for perjury, and found not guilty.

A large number of misdemeanor trials have been had during the week and a number of convictions had.

AYER'S Sugar-Coated Cathartic PILLS.

If the Liver becomes torpid, if the bowels are constipated, or if the stomach fails to perform its functions properly, use Ayer's Pills. They are invaluable.

For some years I was a victim to Liver Complaint, in consequence of which I suffered from General Debility and Indigestion. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills restored me to perfect health.—W. T. Brightney, Henderson, W. Va.

For years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than anything else, to my bowels. These Pills are mild in action, and do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect, in cases of Rheumatism, Kidney Trouble, and Dyspepsia. —G. F. Miller, Attleborough, Mass.

Ayer's Pills cured me of Stomach and Liver troubles, from which I had suffered for years. I consider them the best pills made, and would not be without them.—Morris Gates, Downsville, N. Y.

I was attacked with Bilious Fever, which was followed by Jaundice, and was so dangerously ill that my friends despaired of my recovery. I commenced taking Ayer's Pills, and soon regained my customary strength and vigor.—John C. Pattison, Lowell, Nebraska.

Last spring I suffered greatly from a troublesome humor on my side. In spite of every effort to cure this eruption, it increased until the flesh became entirely raw. I was troubled, at the same time, with Indigestion, and distressing pains in

The Bowels.

By the advice of a friend I began taking Ayer's Pills. In a short time I was free from pain, my food digested properly, the sores on my body commenced healing, and, in less than one month, I was cured. —Samuel D. White, Atlanta, Ga.

I have long used Ayer's Pills, in my family, and believe them to be the best pills made.—S. C. Darden, Darden, Miss.

My wife and little girl were taken with Dysentery a few days ago, and I at once began giving them small doses of Ayer's Pills, thinking I would call a doctor if the disease became any worse. In a short time the bloody discharges stopped, all pain went away, and health was restored. —Theodore Esling, Richmond, Va.

AN INDIAN MAIDEN

Whose Glances Melt a Georgia Editor's Heart.

ELLIJAY, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—The editor of the Courier of this city, has his heart full of an Indian maiden. Among a party which passed throgh this place from North Carolina, was an Indian belle about sweet twenty summers, with raven black hair and jet black eyes. Her name was Miss Rebecca Welch. She was on her way to Talequah, the capital of the Indian territory. She had been at Jordan college, Cherokee county, N. C., for three years past, where nineteen Indian girls attended. She also attended the Asheville college one year. Her object is to enter the university at Talequah, where her parents reside. She was in company with a Mrs. Taylor and little girl, whose husband is an Indian lawyer and herself a hotel keeper in the territory.

Swooned Away and Died.

WRIGHTSVILLE, Ga., October 2.—An old colored man named Dorsey attended a revival service at the colored Baptist church, in which he manifested great interest, shouting and otherwise giving evidence of his wrought up feelings. So effected did the old man become that it is said he fainted and had to be carried from the house and resuscitated after hard work. The old man was then carried home, soon after which he became speechless and died the next day about noon.

Blown up in a Well.

DANIELSVILLE, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—A negro living in the lower part of Madison county was engaged to dig a well deeper, in which blasting had to be done. The negro, while preparing for a blast, by some means ignited the powder, which exploded and blew him up. His limbs were so terribly mangled as to necessitate the amputation of one hand and nearly all of the other. His legs were also torn up, but it is thought that by careful treatment he may recover.

The Wealth of Pickens.

JASPER, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—The tax digest of Pickens county gives many interesting figures: There are 159,598 acres of land, 1044 polls, with 5 lawyers and 5 doctors. There are $218,000 invested in mining property, and the aggregate taxable property of the county, as shown by the tax digest, is $677,736. This is a good showing for a county as small as Pickens.

A Yellow Jackets' Nest.

BUENA VISTA, Ga., October 2.—Special.]—Several runaways having occurred just beyond Bethel church, on the road to Columbus, an investigation resulted. It was discovered that in the rut of the left track of the road was a yellow jackets' nest. The insects are ever ready for war with beasts of burden, and thus far have had the best of the fight.

Deaths in Georgia.

The remains of Mrs. T. C. Packett, who died in Atlanta after a severe spell of typhoid fever, reached Gainesville over the Richmond and Danville railroad Friday at 1 o'clock a.m., accompanied by her husband and daughter. The funeral services were held at 4 o'clock at the residence of Mr. D. H. Stansberry, on Oak street, and the remains interred at the Alta Vista cemetery at 5 o'clock.

BETSY HAMILTON

ON A "MUSKYDINE" HUNT AND COURTING EXPEDITION.

How the Boys of the Neighborhood Get up Little Private Excursions to Go on the Coosa River to Hunt "Muskydines," and to Court—How Mol Freshhours Was Dressed.

Muskydine huntin' and courtin' 'pears to run hand in hand. Coosy river is the beatinest place you ever seed for muskydines, an' wild grapes an' black haws, an' chinkapins and chestnuts and sich like. Fall's done sot in now an' hits gittin' roun' time for the likes er that, an' hits the best excuse in the worl' for the young folks to git up a frolic, an' 'pears like the banks er the Coosy is the best place in the worl' for courtin', and more couples goes thar to court an' git courted as any whar I know. Hits come to that pass in this settlement if a feller says to a gal, says he "Les go to the river," hits ekle to a out right poppin' er the question; kase she knows if she goes the question is bound to come. Dunno what it is about the river, but she is sho to come home with all her finger nails bit off, an' a hole chawed in the corner of her newest pocket han'dercher, an' a lookin' like she knowed some'm she wasn't a gwine to tell, an' a dyin' right then to tell it. Some of 'em does tell it, an' has a way of tellin' it to you, pine blank like you was the onlyest one in' the world they would tell, an' al'ays makes you promise not to tell no body, an' fus thing you know you hear it whispered roun' an' ever body else knows it, an' you are the onlyest one a keepin' of it a secret. But laws, thar's a sight of pleasure in tellin' a secret an' gals haint al'ays to be blamed, for hits the happiest time some of em ever sees.

I rickerleck mighty well how happy po' Becky Jake Hobbs was when she was a tellin' of me about bein' engaged to that up start of a Simeon Bandersett, an' afterwards she married him an' I knowed right then he wasn't good 'nuff fur her, an' had orter tole her so, but I didn't, it wouldn't er done no good. When a body takes a notion to marry, pap he says hits the craziest time er ther life, an' as ole Miss Strong says they're not a gwine to listen to none of your de-vice. But gals an' boys too had orter be monstrous pertickler who they tells they secrets to—many's the time if they'd sleep a night or two on it they wouldn't tell no body. When you tell your secrets then hit aint no longer yourn. About the safest place for a secret is to tell your paw or your maw or both of 'em. I ingennerly goes to pap fust, and he lows "Bets, honey, lemme take my piller on it." He most al'ays knows right then what to say, but he wants me to take my piller on it too. Ef ever body's pap was like mine the chil'en wouldn't be a feared to tell him nothin'. He al'ays listens, an' takes a intrust in ever thing I tells him, an' talks kind an' don't scold an' blame, an' when he gives me my piller on it by the next mornin' me an' him ingennerly thinks pine blank alike.

We'uns was all at the singin' school at "Snaky Branch" tother Friday when the question riz about gittin' up a crowd an' gwine atter muskydines an' I see by the cut of Jackson Gates's eye he aimed to ax me for my company.

I slipt out an' got off home 'fore he had had a chance to speak to me, an' the next night here he come over to our house an' fetched me a note that he had wrote his self. When the chil'en seed him a comin' they set in to plegging me and one of the Bates boys lowed "uph? yonder comes little Jacky Gates, he thinks hisself sich a big man, he haint no oler'n me and Johnny Loftis an' Jimmy Jinkins an' he try to act like he wair twenty-five year ole: he haint but fifteen a gwine on sixteen; he haint oler'n me an' he think heself sich a man."

"Come in, Jacky," says maw, "come in and have a cheer—but mebbe you'd ruther go out to the loom'ouse, the chil'ens all out thar a playin' blind fold—sister Mahaly's little boys and the Bates boys and Roberson chil'en, mebbe you'd ruther go out thar as to set here longer we ole folks."

Po' Jacky! It 'peared like folks never was a gwine to think he was a man. He sot thar and thought to hisself. "I wonder what she thinks a man like me wants to play longer a passle of chil'en fur? I haint no chile." "No mam," says he, "I haint got time. I wants to see Miss Betsy on a little pint er business—air she at home?" says he a trying to talk proper.

"Yes, I'm here," says I, a steppin' out in the entry and a shakin' of his hand, and a takin' of a seat on the bench long side of him. And as I ketched a holt of his hand he slipt the note in it. Maw and aunt Nancy sot and talked to one another, and pap he talked to Jacky about the craps and I put in a word or two, and Jacky he would turn to me ever wunst in a while and speak of the weather. The old folks was in his way. I was sorry for him and tickled too. After while I slipt in to the candle and read his note.

He didn't aim for nobody to git a head of him. Fore Sadiy three more fellers had ax me for my comp'ny and I writ 'em all a note and tole 'em my comp'ny was engaged, and they was all a wonderin' who it was, and didn't know it was Jacky tel me and him walked up together to the school'ouse. We 'uns all met thar by app'intment soon Saddy mornin'. Me and Jacky was sorter late. I recke'n bekase it taken him so long to put on that high paper collar and red check choke rag, and when we'uns got thar the couples was all locked arms and ready to start, and some had on summer clothes and tothers winter and some mixed. This is the time o' year for that sorter riggin. I wisht you could have saw Mol Freshours; she had on a faded blue muslin skirt and a wosted bask and overskirt and one of these collars with a skirt that's made to go inside, and she had skirt and all outside, and hit was starched stiff and stood in a strut like a turkey gobbler's tail. She 'peared to think she was in the fashion and looked plum satisfied.

Thar was a powerful chance of muskydines on the river and we'uns gethered a right smart of 'em; but thar was more courtin' gwine on as anything else.

I'll tell you about the courtin' next time.

Beware of Scrofula

Scrofula is probably more general than any other disease. It is insidious in character, and manifests itself in running sores, pustular eruptions, boils, swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, sore eyes, etc. Hood's Sarsaparilla expels all trace of scrofula from the blood, leaving it pure, enriched, and healthy.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles Hood's Sarsaparilla, and am cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

C. A. Arnold, Arnold, Me., had scrofulous sores for seven years, spring and fall. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured him.

Salt Rheum

Is one of the most disagreeable diseases caused by impure blood. It is readily cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier.

William Spies, Elyria, O., suffered greatly from erysipelas and salt rheum, caused by handling tobacco. At times his hands would crack open and bleed. He tried various preparations without aid; finally took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now says: "I am entirely well."

"My son had salt rheum on his hands and on the calves of his legs. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. B. Stanton, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

SKIN AND BLOOD

Diseases from Pimples to Scrofula Cured by Cuticura.

Hundreds of letters in our possession, copies of which may be had by return of mail, repeat this story —I have been a terrible sufferer for years from Diseases of the Skin and Blood; have been obliged to shun public places by reason of my disfiguring humors; have had the best physicians; have spent hundreds of dollars, and got no relief until I used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, which have cured me and left my skin and blood as pure as a child's.

COVERED WITH SALT RHEUM.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case of Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe CUTICURA would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, internally, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally.

NEWARK, O. J. W. ADAMS.

HEAD, FACE AND BODY RAW.

I commenced to use your CUTICURA REMEDIES last July. My head and face and some parts of my body were almost raw. My head was covered with scaby and sores, and my suffering was fearful. I had tried everything I had heard of in the East and west. My case was considered a very bad one. I have now not a particle of Skin Humor about me, and my case is considered wonderful.

FEVER SORE CURED.

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers, who has been cured by using the Cuticura Remedies, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness or fever eight years ago. He was so bad he was fearful he would have to have his leg amputated, but is happy to say he is now entirely well,—sound as a dollar. He requests me to use his name, which is H. H. Casson, merchant, of this place. JOHN V. MINOR, Gainesboro, Tenn.

COLUMBUS CHRONICLES.

Sudden Death of a Negro Woman—Accident to a Factory Operative.

COLUMBUS, GA., October 2—[Special.]—Harry Payne, an old negro woman of this city, dropped dead tonight.

The officers of the Georgia Midland railroad have just returned from a trip over the line. The work is progressing rapidly and trains will soon be running over the first twenty-five miles of the road. President Jordan said tonight that the road will go to McDonough, instead of Locust Grove.

Mr. Jim Brown, an operative at the Eagle and Phenix mills had his hand caught in the gear today and three fingers cut off.

An attempt was made to burn the gin house on Mr Roland Dozier's place in this county last night, but the fire was discovered and extinguished before much damage had been done.

An alarm of fire was turned in from the Central railroad depot in this city this evening. The cotton in the yard caught fire out the railroad employes put it out before it made much headway.

Mr H D Howren of the Enquirer-Sun, has been invited to deliver the medal to the successful competitor in the Professor Houghs' business college next Friday night.

GREETING M'CARTHY.

New York Irishmen Present an Address to Their Patriot.

NEW YORK, October 2.—Members of the New York municipal council of the Irish National league presented a beautiful illuminated address to Mr Justin McCarthy tonight. It was inscribed on vellum and was surmounted by a representation of the old Irish house of parliament. The address welcomed the visitor on behalf of the Irish National league of New York, and told him he would find a "strong feeling of affection for the dear old land" in this country, combined with an "ability and willingness to hold up the hands of the Irish leaders in their struggle for home rule and land reform."

The address refers in complimentary terms to his patriotic services in Ireland's cause and his zeal for her suffering people; also to his achievement in literary work. Speaking of Ireland, the address says:

"She has passed through the red sea of anguish, through the desert of tribulation, and but little time will elapse when she shall enter into the full possession of those rights which alone can render her people happy and prosperous."

The address concludes with the expressed hope that his hands may be strengthened in the work before him and his leader, Parnell, and pledging the support of the Irish National league of America.

In his reply, Mr. McCarthy, after thanking them for their memorial, alluded to the work of the Irish parliamentary party, and said they were grateful for the sympathy and aid of Irish-Americans who had assisted their brothers on the other side of the water more than their own brothers had aided them. They must not count the result of the division on Mr Gladstone's home rule bill as a defeat, but rather think of it as a decided victory, seeing the great increase to their ranks in so few years. They were not far from getting their end. He did not know if Mr. Gladstone would give it to them or not. At all events, they would have him with them and if he was unable to bring it about, then he thought Lord Randolph Churchill would be their champion, and in that case he would carry the house of lords with him.

THE KNIGHTS GATHERING.

Preparations for the Convention in Richmond, Va.

RICHMOND, Va, October 2.—The approaching meeting of the national assembly Knight's of Labor has been one of the absorbing topics of interest here for some days. Already many knight's have arrived including delegations from New Orleans, Kansas City, St. Louis, Troy, N Y., Amsterdam, N. Y., Cohoes, Lebanon Pa; Blossburg, Pa; and Brooklyn. Each incoming train brings new accessions and it is expected that by Monday morning all the delegations will have arrived. All the hotels will be filled and many of the delegates will have private quarters.

The session of the assembly will be held in the drill hall of the First Virginia regiment, the largest hall in the city, which is now being arranged for the purpose. There will be accommodations for about two thousand, although the convention will not number over ten to twelve hundred. Grand Master Workman Powderly will arrive here tomorrow morning. Grand Secretary Turner arrived yesterday, and has since been actively engaged in preparing the work of the assembly. The assembly will have an open session Monday, when Governor Lee will formally welcome the knights, and Grand Master Workman Powderly will respond and deliver his annual address. Subsequent sessions of the assembly will be secret, but the press will be furnished with a record of all important business done, which it is desired to make public.

Grand Master Workman Powderly arrived here tonight. His headquarters will be at Ford's hotel. Several other delegations also arrived tonight.

SELECTING THE SITE.

An Agent of the Treasury Department in Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., October 2—[Special.]—Mr. C M Austell, special agent of the treasury department, is here to locate the new public building, soon to be erected here. Four sites were offered—one at the northwest corner of Bull and Broad, one at the southwest corner of Abercorn and York streets, one at the northwest corner of Drayton and Bryan streets, at present occupied by the Southern bank, and the fourth facing the Telfair place between State, President, Barnard and Whitaker streets, owned by the Union society.

This morning the Savannah board of trade had a conference with Collector Wheaton and Mr. Austell at the office of the former to hear the views of business men as to the best location for the building. Mr. Austell listened attentively to the arguments advanced and gave all the various sites proposed a careful consideration. He will remain in the city a few days longer, making further investigation into the matter, and on returning to Washington will make a report to the department with recommendations.

WEDDED IN JAIL.

A Negro Couple Made One in Richmond Prison.

AUGUSTA, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—A marriage behind the bars occurred here today, and is the most sensational affair recorded for a long while. During the last term of Richmond superior court, Evan Doyle, a notorious negro sharp, who obtains his sobriquet from a negro gambling device with dice called "eleven seven," was convicted of burglary and is now confined in Richmond county jail, pending an appeal. Today Anna Smalls called at the jail armed with license and accompanied by a minister was married to Doyle. Immediately after the ceremonies the bride took her departure and the groom was locked in his cell. The prisoners and city officials witnessed the ceremony.

Athens Items.

ATHENS, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Mr. K. D. Flatteiter, who was carried to Milledgeville from Jackson county, upon a writ of lunacy last month, died Friday in the asylum. The National bank today received a very large Herring safe weighing 20,500 pounds. It contains 183 deposit boxes which will be rented to parties in the city.

The legislative race is getting very hot between Messrs. Russell and Murrell, and the canvass has taken a personal turn. There is danger that the split will elect Dr. Lowery, the Knight of Labor candidate.

To Hang November 26.

ELLAVILLE, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—The jury in the case of Blackman vs. state, charged with the murder of S J. Toudee, after being out half an hour, returned a verdict of guilty. Judge Fort sentenced the defendant to be hanged on the twenty-sixth day of next November. This will be the first time since the county was organized in 1858, that any one was hung. The trial lasted two days and able speeches were made by the attorneys engaged in the case.

Is Jesse Cook Alive?

BUTLER, Ga., October 2—[Special.]—When Rev. Jesse Cook was hanged, on the 17th, his body was turned over to his friends who put it on the night train for Box Springs. The negroes here assert that the body was warm and perspiring when so turned over, and that Cook's friends have carefully nursed him back to life. There are white people who join in this belief.

Fightingtown Camp Meeting.

MORGANTON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Fightingtown camp meeting has closed one of its most successful seasons. There was an average attendance of 2500. There were fifty-two conversions. It was remarkable that the preachers were all handsome men.

A Dry Goods Failure.

BALTIMORE, October 2.—Morris Waglein, dry goods, made an assignment this evening to M. S. Weil. The assets are stated at $25,000.

THE DAY IN MACON.

GEORGE JONES, A BARBER, HELD ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Tried Before Justice Freeman—Result of the Trial—An Ugly Smash Up—Sadly Hurt—The Covington and Macon—Shackleford's Arrest—Other News Notes of Interest.

MACON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—This morning Pett Gantt, the well-known Brown house barber's wife, sent to the city hall for an officer to make an arrest. Officer Bill Jones and Lieutenant Wood responded, and found her talking with George Jones, a barber employed at her husband's establishment. She had detained George until the officers came, so that they might take him in charge, as he had been accused of rape by Mary E. Smith, a young negro girl from Charleston, who was staying with the Gantts.

George was badly frightened, and accompanied the officers to the barracks, where he was locked up.

Your correspondent visited the scene, and was informed of the girl's story, which was, in substance, that George and she had attended the theater last night together. After the entertainment was over they boarded a street car going by the Brown house, thinking to go all the way around to where Gantt lived on the avenue. The cars stopped at the stables, so they had to walk a good long ways home. On the way she says George made improper proposals, and when she objected, he drew a pistol and presented it at her face, and forced her to yield. He then went on with her until the nearly house, when they were met by Gantt's wife, who had become alarmed and was in search of the girl. Afterwards the girl told the story and George was arrested.

Your correspondent talked with George through the bars, and learned from him his version of the case, which was that after leaving the stables she proposed to return the way they came, but he told her it was too far, and brought her directly toward her stopping place.

On the way she talked very freely to him, acting in such a manner as to lead him to believe that she was rather fast. He says he had his pistol in his hand, and that while they were together she took it and fired off three barrels of it. He induced her to desist as and when he saw Gantt's wife coming he got the pistol from her and laid it on the fence. He says that the girl was scared at the way Gantt's wife accosted her, and invented the charge against him.

The pistol was found where he left it, on the fence by the officers who arrested him. Officers McCafferty and Charley Hutchins assisted in making the arrest. George was carried before Judge Freeman today, and was represented by Professor F. J M Daly. After a long and exhaustive examination Judge Freeman bound him over in the sum of five hundred dollars, mainly on Dr Moore's testimony, who, with Dr. Kenan Hall, examined the girl. He swore that he believed the girl to be a virtuous girl prior to the deed, and the evidence looked pretty bad against him. After an unsuccessful effort to give the required bond, George was committed to jail, to await the action of the higher courts.

He is a short, black negro, of good address, and does not look like a real villain.

Badly Hurt.

MACON Ga., October 2—[Special.]—Yesterday, Frank, the little son of Captain Frank Mosely was badly hurt by falling from a chinaberry tree. He climbed up to get some berries to play with and losing his balance he tumbled to the earth, striking his head against a sharp stone, cutting a gash three inches in length. Dr L L Johnson was called and sewed up the gash and dressed the wound, and the little fellow is better today.

A Fearful Leap.

MACON, Ga., October 2—[Special.]—Today about one o'clock Isaac Davis was driving his one horse dray along Fourth street, when his mare got scared and ran away. As the team passed the Edgerton house one fore wheel struck the rear wheel of Andrew Howard's hack, shattering it to smithereens, and the mare made a dash for the old entrance of the depot yard, which is now closed up with a strong iron fence, five feet high. Instead of turning into the alley the animal rushed headlong on to the fence. The driver jumped out, and the shock of the horse caused the iron pillars to give way and she reared up, and one of the sharp spikes, eight inches long and three inches in width, entered her right side near the fore shoulder, and with a mad plunge she leaped from the brick wall to the ground, six feet below, turning a somersault and falling across the heavy iron posts. The entire panel of fence was carried down and several of the palings snapped off. She then struggled to her feet and made for the street, but was stopped by Officer Dan Thomas. A crowd gathered around, and the animal was found to be badly hurt. One rib was broken and protruded from the ghastly wound. Dr. Poole the veterinary surgeon, took charge of her and she was carried to Hicks's stable for treatment. It was a fearful leap, and the horse must have been crazed with fright that would attempt it.

The Covington and Macon.

MACON, Ga., October 2—[Special.]—Yesterday the first shipment of cotton was made over the Covington and Macon railroad. Mr. Ed Mercer, of Morton, Jones county, loaded it on a box car and shipped it to the park junction, where it was unloaded. The iron bridge is being rapidly completed, and Major Foot is using every effort to get the road into Clinton by the time the state fair opens.

Today at noon a merry party went out on an excursion on the road, returning at 6 p.m. this evening. The road is now in full time as far as the rails are laid; and rides just as nicely as anybody's road. A good many Jones county exhibits will be shipped over the road to the state fair.

"To lock Shackleford up. Chief Wiley has had a letter from Chicago stating that Shackleford was not O K., and his methods here have been rather distasteful to the people at large. He waived a preliminary examination today, and will appear before the city court to answer to the charge of cheating and swindling.

Personal Paragraphs.

MACON, October 2—[Special.]—Rev. C. C. Randolph, rector of the Americus Episcopal church, is stopping in the city on his way home from a visit to his old home in Virginia.

Mr. B. K Harper came down from Rome today, and will re-enter Mercer for the term.

Colonel C B. Townsend, of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life association is visiting friends in Sylvania.

W B. Physioc, the tailor, is now with M. Greenburg.

Williams & Williams, the jewelers, have just finished mounting two unique scarf pins for THE CONSTITUTION staff. One is for your correspondent, and the other for Mr W. E. Johnson. The settings are the halves of one of the stones thrown up in the stone shower after the Charleston earthquake.

John R. Dominick and Miss Battie Herndon were married at the residence of the bride's mother, 316 Fourth street, Thursday night. An elegant repast was served after the wedding.

The last meeting before the fair of the Holton farmers' club occurred today. Quite a number of Maconites attended.

The stock of T. J. Hunt & Co's shoe store was sold at auction by Vansickle & Hervey, auctioneers yesterday. It was purchased by L. W. Hunt for $5,250.

Grand Firemanic Reel Race.

MACON, October 2—[Special.]—The following will interest the fire laddies:

The Georgia state agricultural society offers $100 in gold to the fastest hose squad race to come off at Macon, Ga., Wednesday, October 27th, 1886, at Central City park, during state fair. The test is to be on a hundred yards run. At a given signal, squad will carry reel to plug; attach and lay one hundred feet of hose; attach pipe and play water twenty-five feet. One man allowed to every seventy-five pounds weight of reel, not including plugman and pipeman. No reel allowed to carry less than two hundred and fifty feet of hose. Loose couplings allowed.

For further information, address communications to L. M. JONES, Chief Fire Department, Macon, Ga.

Another News Stand.

MACON, October 2.—[Special.]—Travellers are frequently puzzled to obtain CONSTITUTIONS when in a hurry. Mr T. C Parker has obtained the right to keep a news stand at the Edgerton house, and Mr. Ed Dreyfus will manage it, and CONSTITUTIONS may be found there every day. It was opened today.

Music at the First Baptist Church.

Mrs Annie Mays Dow, has returned and will fill her accustomed place in the First Baptist choir today. The following splendid programme has been arranged by Professor Snow and will be a treat to all who hear the music. Mrs. Dow will sing the soprano solos and soprano parts, Mrs Sirc all the contralto, Mr. Hardeman the basso, and Mr. Scrutchin the tenor:

MORNING.

KILLED ON THE RAILROAD.

John Lawless, an Atlanta Painter, Killed on the Central Railroad.

John Lawless, an Atlanta painter, was found dead beside the Central railroad track three miles and a half from Atlanta about seven o'clock last night by Charles Lee and Marvin Dardin two negro men. The men had been working at Conductor Tom McLendon's place during the day and after dark started to their homes. They walked the railroad because it was shorter than the wagon road and when within fifty yards of Mr. Purdie's residence saw the body lying beside the track. At first they supposed it was some one asleep but quickly discovered that the man was dead. They awoke Mr John Wise, living near by, who telephoned to the city. Captain Crim went out to the place, and after examining the body, found that death had been produced by violence. He was uncertain at first whether the man had been killed by the train or murdered and laid upon the track but finally became satisfied that the train had killed him. An engine was sent to the place and the body was brought to the city and taken to police headquarters, where an inquest will be held this morning.

The Registration of Elbert.

ELBERTON, October 2—[Special.]—There were two thousand and eight voters that registered in Elbert county, leaving three or four hundred who have not registered. Our law requires another registration before the election for county officers in January.

Seeking New Situations.

AUGUSTA, Ga, October 2—[Special.]—Knights of Labor affected by the lockout are leaving for pastures new. Last week ten went to Anniston, Ala. Thursday eight went to Lowell, N. C., and one hundred and fifty-five left this morning for Newberry, S C.

Theatricals Next Week.

The week will open Monday with "Flash Light," rather a startling title, presented by Mr. James O. Barrows, who was here last year as the Professor, with the Madison Square Theater company, and Miss Marion Booth, the granddaughter of the celebrated actor and the niece of Edwin Booth. The talent of Mr. Barrows is sufficiently known. He is a clever refined, irrepressible comedian. Miss Booth we do not know, except by her New York record and by the notices of our exchanges. She is said to be beautiful and to possess a good deal of the family genius. The New York Herald thus describes the lady:

"One of the finest looking girls on the American stage is Miss Marion Booth, daughter of the late Junius Brutus Booth. She appeared as Iolanthe last night in the Lexington avenue opera house and won an unquestioned triumph. She is a beautiful woman, with a Booth face and a much more completely rounded character than a majority of the eccentric family."

"Richelieu," with Mr. Booth in the title role, was repeated at Ford's opera house last night in admirable style. Marion Booth, who is new to the stage, played Marion de L'Orme with noticeable grace and a certain girlish freshness which made it especially attractive.—Dramatic News.

Friday and Saturday, with matinee, the great spectacular play, "Michael Strogoff," with its car load of scenery, its legions of pretty amazons, its enchanting ballet, its marvellous specialties, will occupy the opera house and will certainly fill the large theater.

Few dramas now on the stage give the scope for scenic splendor that is found in this powerful representation of the romantic career of the courier of the Czar. The pomp of the imperial fetes, and picturesqueness of the frontier stations on the steppes of Russia, and the crimson tide of battle, all pay tribute to its splendor, and are presented with a fidelity and realism that surpasses anything of the kind ever seen. The mise en scene revels in the glint of despotic display, the richness of barbaric color, and the delights that come only with lavish expenditure and careful study of the effect of masses. This is especially evident in the wonderful tableaux that close the various scenes, and leave on the retinas of the spectators pictures so vivid and life like that it is several seconds after the baize falls before they disappear. Aside from these general excellences, there is much to hold the closest attention of the audience. The drama is one that not only appeals to every admirer of the sturdy patriotism of the sclavonic race, but is strong in interest to every one. Like the novel on which it is founded, it is thrilling from beginning to end, and the rapid succession of its exciting episodes, gives it an absorbing character which even a knowledge of the plot and denouement does not interfere. In fact the absorbing character is intensified by the somewhat floric treatment it has received in dramatization. The painter's art, as well as the costumer's ingenuity, have been brought into prominence in the scenic illustrations that assume a marked distinction seldom seen in stage productions. These pictorial features are especially remarkable, but are rivaled by the scenes showing the battle field of Kolyvan and Irkutsk in flames. The characterizations are all of them strong.

We take pleasure in announcing also the coming of the charming Adelaide Randall and her new and augmented opera company, selected with great care so as to double the success of last season if possible. Besides the bewitching Adelaide, who, like Emma Abbott, is worth alone an army, Mr. Traverner, the English tenor, has been engaged at a high salary to play the best male parts. A complete chorus, male and female, and an orchestra well trained together will bring the company to a full standard and allow a rendition of operatic gems that has never been excelled in the south.

The Bijou opera company will be here four days and the lovers of music will be able to enjoy a true feast of melodies. We must not forget to mention that to the troupe has been added also an artist whom a host of friends will be happy to welcome in the gate city. Mr. W W. Picker, who, years ago, made his debut on our stage with the Rossini club as Devil's Hoof, in the Bohemian girl, and was engaged by his success as an amateur to adopt the life of an artist.

Macon Makes a Supplemental Bid of a Ten Thousand Dollar Site—The Commission Decides to Visit and Inspect the Different Sites—Atlanta's Enterprise—Other News.

The commission met yesterday at ten o'clock and was called to order by Chairman Harris.

The first proposition before the board was a supplementary bid from the city of Macon, which authorized Mr Harris to offer ten thousand dollars cash, a site and three thousand dollars per annum. The situation was this. The day before, before presenting Atlanta's bid, Mayor Hillyer stated that he understood that the bids would be received up to twelve o'clock at night. The chairman said that was true. Mayor Hillyer then said that Atlanta would prefer not to enter her bid until just before twelve o'clock at night, unless the other cities would enter their bids simultaneously with her. The chairman stated that the bids of Macon and Athens were already in and was final and fixed. Upon this assurance Mayor Hillyer filed Atlanta's bid. A resolution had already been passed declaring that no bids should be received after the first day. The chairman stated that Macon's supplementary bid would not be filed unless Atlanta would consent, as he had assured Atlanta the day before that Macon's final bid was already in and that Atlanta's bid had been filed upon this assurance.

After consultation between Mayor Hillyer, Colonel E P. Howell, Mr. Tompkins, and H. W Grady, who were present representing Atlanta, Mayor Hillyer stated that Atlanta was anxious to show Macon every courtesy, and would interpose no objection to her supplemental bid, if it could be stated definitely what was meant by "a site," and provided Atlanta would have the right to amend her bid to the effect, that if none of the sites now offered were suitable, she would have the right to offer a new site.

Mr. Harris stated that he would telegraph to Macon and ascertain exactly what was meant by the words, "a site," and the board adjourned until half past two o'clock.

Upon reassembling, Mr Harris submitted a telegram which stated that the site offered by Macon would not exceed in value ten thousand dollars.

Mayor Hillyer, after consultation, stated that Atlanta had no objection to Macon entering her supplementary bid.

Mr. Hodgson then moved to reconsider the resolution, declaring all bids closed, urging that Macon could not come in unless this motion was rescinded.

Mr Porter stated that he was opposed to reopening the bids and putting up the school at auction, and would rather throw Macon's bid out than to do this.

Mr Heard stated that he was opposed to reopening the bids.

Mr. Porter then moved as a substitute to Mr. Hodgson's motion that Macon's bid be reconsidered.

Mr. Hodgson declared that it should not be done without re-opening the whole matter.

Upon the vote, Messrs. Porter, Heard and Inman voted aye, and Mr. Hodgson no.

Macon's supplementary bid will therefore be considered.

Mr. Inman urged that the matter be settled at once, saying that the sooner the commissioners could act the better it would be for the school, provided they acted with deliberation.

Mr. Hodgson thought the commission should not act until they had visited each of the cities offering sites and had examined them in detail.

Mr. Inman replied that if it was a question of site Mr. Hodgson's objection would be a good one, but that each member of the commission was acquainted with each site that was offered, and it was therefore useless to take a week's trip through the state to look into the matter. He was not disposed to be captious, however, and if the commission thought best to visit each competitive point he had nothing further to say.

Mr. Porter said it was a matter of perfect indifference to him, as he was already acquainted with the sites that were offered.

Upon vote Messrs. Heard, Hodgson and Porter voted aye and Mr. Inman voted no.

It was then proposed that the commission start on Monday, going to Athens first.

Mr Heard stated that next Tuesday was election day, and most of the members of the commission would like to be at home. He stated that he would not leave his county until after Tuesday, as the democratic nominees there had opposition and he felt it his duty to be at home.

It was then arranged that the commission would start Thursday and visit between Thursday morning and Saturday night the towns of Athens, Penfield, Macon and Milledgeville. The board then adjourned.

The Subscriptions to the Fund in Atlanta.

We print below the names of the subscribers to the technological fund, offered by the citizens of Atlanta, for the school. It will be seen that there is $6 25 00 yet unsubscribed. This amount the committee guaranteed in writing to the commission, relying on the public spirit of those who have not yet subscribed in Atlanta to make this amount good. The members of the committee have subscribed liberally and should not be forced to make this additional subscription. The bid is a cash one, before the commission and guaranteed as $20,000 cash payable on demand, by the committee, headed by Mr. R. J. Lowry.

The Sites Offered.

The letters which follow contain the offers of sites for the school of technology. They explain themselves:

NIAGARA FALLS, September 17th, 1886.—Sam'l M Inman, Esq. Atlanta, Ga. Dear Sir: Referring to our conversation in the matter of a site for the technological school, I offer a donation of two acres of land, lying southeast of the Lambert gardens, bounded on the west by Park avenue, along the centre of which is now constructed the Metropolitan street railway. The tract is an elevated plateau, nearly one quarter of a mile inside of the city limits. With the opening of Park avenue and South Boulevard on the east, I think the proposed donation would be worth $8,000. Very respectfully, your obedient servant, L. P. GRANT.

ATLANTA, Ga., September 16, 1886.—Mr. S. M. Inman, dear Sir: I am instructed by the Peter's Park Improvement company, to offer four acres of land as a site for the erection of buildings for the school of technology and for other purposes incident to the management of the same. The land lies within the city limits on North avenue and Cherry street, commencing at the north-east corner of said street, and running north three hundred and twenty-six feet to a street, thence east along said street and avenue to a line that will include a space of four acres, valued at a low estimate $10,000.

Very respectfully, J W. CULPEPPER, Sec'y, P P. Improvement Co.

ATLANTA, Ga., September 18, 1886.—Mr. S. M. Inman, Commissioner of the State School of Technology—Dear Sir: I propose to donate to the State School of Technology, upon condition that the school will be located thereon, five acres of land, a portion of the commanding site lying immediately east of the city of Atlanta and on the north side of the Georgia railroad. This property is most eligible for the purpose, and is valued at $10,000. Yours very truly, JOEL HURT.

HE IS OUT FOR MAYOR.

Mr. John Tyler Cooper Announces Himself as a Candidate.

Hon. John Tyler Cooper announces himself as a candidate for mayor this morning, in a card.

Mr Cooper's card is well worth reading.

For the past year or more, Mr. Cooper's name has been mentioned as a candidate by his friends. At first he gave but little attention to the request made upon him to run, but within the past six months so numerous have these requests been that Mr Cooper began to give the matter serious consideration. The best men of the city have stated that they believed he was the man for the place and yielding to their wishes, Mr. Cooper announces himself in the following card:

To the Voters of Atlanta:—At the suggestion of many friends I announce myself a candidate for mayor at the ensuing city election. In doing so I take occasion to say that municipal affairs are questions of business in which all of our citizens are vitally interested, and the officers of the city government should be selected for their peculiar competency to treat the various subjects involved. I trust my experience during the past three years as a councilman and an alderman have given me sufficient familiarity with the city's business to enable me to intelligently and judiciously administer her affairs. By this standard I am willing to be measured, and shall accept unhesitatingly the decree of the people rendered thereon.

The efforts of persons to inject into every canvass matters foreign to the questions to be considered, and to keep alive dissensions engendered of past divisions is in the highest degree objectionable. The perpetuation of personal hostilities is to be deprecated, and is disastrous to the city's interests. Her interests forbid the further estrangement of our people, and the course of wisdom lies in efforts to allay the passions and prejudices created in the past. The city has many important interests which demand the careful attention of the city officers, and to subordinate them, or any of them, to rekindling the flames of the past, is unwise in the extreme.

The affairs of our city are in a most happy and prosperous condition, and it should be the paramount duty of her citizens and officials not only to keep her up to the high standard she now enjoys, but to improve on it as far as possible.

The fire department is in fine condition, well manned and officered, and in point of efficiency, so far as the limited means go, is second to none.

The police department, under the wise and conservative management of our board of police commissioners, in point of material could hardly be improved upon, but both these departments call for additional force to meet the growing interests of the city and to give these officers their needed relief from overwork, which their fidelity and efficiency demand from a generous public.

Our water commissioners need and should receive the unstinted encouragement and assistance of our citizens and the moral support of our citizens in adding to and improving on our dual system of water works. The excellent management of our present board and their wisdom in the settlement of the many vexed questions with which they have had to deal, and the fine condition to which they have brought the present inadequate and unsatisfactory works, are matters of congratulation.

It is the duty of our city officers to unite with the gentlemen composing the efficient board of health and its faithful officers in providing and enforcing proper sanitary regulations in order to preserve to our citizens that remarkable degree of health and freedom from disease which in part, under their efforts, we now enjoy.

There is an increasing demand for further school facilities for both white and colored, and particularly is it necessary to provide further accommodations for colored children, whose schools are now badly crowded, and many of whom are not able to obtain admission. This matter should receive the attention of the city authorities during the coming year and must be arranged, as there is no part of our city system in which our people should take more pride than the public schools.

The burdens of taxation are onerous and the attention of the authorities should be directed to the giving of all possible relief.

These and numbers of other minor matters are living issues and to them I invite the attention of all who love our city and desire to see her prosper and restored to that condition of brotherly regard and unity which has been the brightest star of our existence.

If elected mayor, I shall give my attention to all the interests of the city, and shall not feel at liberty to neglect any for the sake of another. It would be my duty and my pleasure to use the powers toward the enforcement of the laws and the preservation of good order and morals. My official life has been one of strict observance of law and the occupant of the mayor's office could not with propriety permit any other policy to obtain.

There are those in all communities, and we doubtless have some of them among us, who see themselves up as the only ones whose opinions are worth having, and will perhaps try to wring into this municipal canvass the old question of prohibition and anti-prohibition. These wise men can see no virtue in any who differ with them, and will make efforts to ensconce in office those only who blindly follow them in their conceit and adhere to their particular tenets on those matters without regard to the fitness of the subject to the question at hand. The proper course in the furtherance of brotherly love and good government would seem to be to give these wiseacres a back seat. The city government should be administered on safer and sounder principles. Men will differ on questions of governmental policy and political economy, and in their capacity to differ lies the best evidence of their intelligence and their ability to properly govern themselves, and their differences make them no less honorable men and no less capable of being true to official trust. I have no reference to any particular side of that contest, but to those extreme men on either side whose ultra ideas and intense partisanship make them unsafe leaders in any cause, and whose passions and feelings would prompt them to the commission of deeds unwarranted by the principles of justice and right on the one side and dangerous to the public order on the other.

If the people of Atlanta, who know me and among whom I have spent a great part of my boyhood and all the years of my manhood, shall see proper to entrust me with the mayoralty, they may be assured that I shall surrender the trust at the expiration of the term as unspotted and as unsullied as is my record or service in the general council, and in other positions of trust with which they have honored me in the past.

JOHN T. COOPER.

SIXTEEN UNFORTUNATES.

Men Who Violated the Internal Revenue Laws.

Sixteen men who have been violating the internal revenue laws were arrested Friday night and yesterday.

Ten of them were confined in Fulton county jail.

Seven of these men were brought from Union county, and were surrendered by their bondsmen. Deputy Marshal Campbell came in with four from Gilmer, who were also surrendered by their bondsmen. Just why the bondsmen are surrendering them so fast is not known but it is said that the report has been circulated that Judge Newman is going to be very severe on revenue violators.

John Calhoun was arrested by Deputy Marshal Scott, and carried before Commissioner Haight, but on account of the absence of witnesses the case was postponed. Others were brought in and gave bond. It was a busy day in the revenue department.

WANTED IN TEXAS.

Officers on the Lookout for an Athens Young Man.

ATHENS, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Captain Oliver yesterday received a letter from Lampasas, Texas, asking if S C. Wheeless is in Athens, and stating that he is badly wanted in Texas. The letter contained a photograph of the young man. Wheeless is well known in Athens and is the son of Mrs. Hamilton Huggins. It will be remembered he shot his father-in-law in the hand during a difficulty in Gainesville, Ga. Besides other crimes, Wheeless robbed his mother of $11,000. It seems that she placed him in charge of a ranch in Texas, when he turned the entire property into cash and left for parts unknown. He has not been seen around Athens, and the opinion is that he has sought refuge in Canada.

WILLIAM ON WIGGINS.

WHAT ARP SAW IN ATLANTA ON THE 29TH.

He Runs Down to See What Effect Wiggins's Predictions Would Have on the Citizens—He Visits Several Business Houses, to Find the Proprietors "O—"—Etc., Etc.

On the 29th I took a little run down to Atlanta, where the great Piedmont escarpment is, and I found everything quiet—very quiet. It seemed like Sunday up to about three o'clock. I never saw as few people stirring around in that lively city. There were very few traveling on the trains. My friend Porter, who keeps the gate at the passenger depot, quit his post and was meandering around. I went to Thompson's for dinner and he was asleep in his chair with THE CONSTITUTION on his knees. I looked in the drug stores and saw no ladies, except two colored ones at Kelly's, and they were after some golden slippers with which to climb the golden stairs. Captain Kiely was out. I went over to J m Anderson's and Jim was out. I advanced cautiously to THE CONSTITUTION building, and Howell and Grady and Hemphill were out. I found Jack Henderson in at the agricultural hall, but he looked uneasy and left in a few minutes. He looked up and said: "This is a shaky old house." Everywhere I went the boss was out, and the clerks didn't know where he had gone or when he would get back, but a knowing friend told me in a whisper that they were all out, and would be until late in the afternoon. They were afraid of these brick houses and had gone home to wooden ones The children were not at school nor on the streets. The darkies were subdued and the little newsboys seemed lost for lack of customers. Nobody was alarmed but everybody was in that peculiar cautious state which said I don't believe a word of it but still I will stay at home today. The clerks were at their posts and offices and reminded me of Casabianca. I met an Israelitish friend and said, "What makes you look so solemn today?" Well, my friend, it is not de earthquake at all but dis is de last day of de Jewish year 5687, and tomorrow I close mine store for worship." An old Englishman said: "The hearthquake does not trouble me at all, but I 'av no likings for a tornado. I am hawful scared of a tornado. I 'ope hit won't come; but there is something behind it all that consarns me, and that is 'ell and damnation." Said I to John: "Have you heard anything about what is going to happen tomorrow?" "Yas, sir; I hears 'em talk about dat last night at meetin', but dey didn't know who start it agwine, and so I no bother myself. Dey ax my 'pinion and I say I ain't got no 'pinion. I jes gwine to wait. De Lord make me; I did'nt I belongs to him and if he want to onmake me or to make me over again he can do it. It's none of my consarns. I ain't nuffin but a poor nigger, and I ain t gwine to make no fuss about it. But I is gwine to cut wood tomorrow unless sumbody steal's my ax. I jes as leave de Lord cotch me cuttin wood as prayin and shoutin and singin around in de meetin house. I seed de stairs fall away back and dey didn't git me, and I ain't afeerd no more of nuffin."

Well, it is all over now and everybody is calm and serene "Old Mother Wiggins is dead and a thousand editors have preached her funeral The weather will have to get up a new prophet now

I notice that the candidates have brightened up. They were a little gloomy at the idea of being prematurely cut off from the next legislature, but they have got a prospect left. There are seven in the field and five of them have nothing but a prospect. Two will be taken and the others left. They have my sympathy in advance. I wish there was an office for each of them for they want to do us all the good they can. Our people are somewhat bothered. They would like to harmonize on a Bacon man and a Gordon man just for the sake of peace and to unite the organized democracy, but it is all in confusion and there will be more single shooting than there ever was before. The whisky question has got mixed up with the race, and that complicates it, for we don't know who wants the law repealed or modified and who don't. Mr. Foute has come out square and says let the law stand as it is. We will vote for Mr. Foute, not simply for that, for he is a good man anyhow and a safe man, and carries with him the mark of his devotion to his country, and I am a good deal like Cousin Jonn Tarrant, who said: "I'd vote for a crutch or an empty sleeve against my brother. Yes, sir; a man who shed blood for me and my rights will always have my respect and my gratitude. I'll not forget him, sir; no, never! If he couldent read nor write, I'd vote for him to just set there and follow suit." I asked two sensible negroes today if they wanted whisky back in this county and they both said, "No, sir," and one said, "Why, sir, if it hadent been for them saloons in town Step Pruit would have been livin right here with his family today and Bob Smith wouldent have been sent to the coaingang for killing him. Thats so and the Lord knows it. The colored man got no business with whisky."

Now we do not want to make any mistake about this thing. We are trying to build up a town that will have some reputation for its morality. We are in earnest about establishing a female college of a high grade and we can't expect patronage from abroad with a town full of saloons. Our own country people would not send their daughters there. No we do not want the door opened. We want no elections every two years on that question. Let the law stand. If a man wants whisky let him get it at Rome. He can do it; I see the jugs put off the express car occasionally. There is a plenty for snake bites. The doctors are making no fuss about it. The mothers and wives and sisters are content. The preachers say amen. The courthouse is grateful. The jail is happy and the calaboose is calm and serene. The poor man's horse used to stand hitched to the rack until midnight, but he don't know. Country boys used to gallop home in the dark, yelling and shooting their pistols, but they don't now. The experiment is a success even though prohibition does not altogether prohibit, and so we say let the law stand. It has stood for years and years in some places. Half the county churches in the state have prohibition for three miles around them, and here is a town that has half a dozen churches and a tabernacle and wants a college. Whisky and pistols have set us back and we can do without both. A truthful man told me that he attended church at Cassville last Sunday and he saw four young gentlemen there under sixteen years of age on one seat and each of them had a pistol and had them out showing them to each other while the minister was preaching. We have laws enough if they can be enforced. There are parents all about who have given up their children and who admit they cannot control them. Then let the courts and juries take hold and see what they can do. Grass has been thrown at the boy in the apple tree long enough. Let us see what virtue there is in stones.

BILL ARP.

Groaning on a Bed of Agony,

In the throes of rheumatism, which has reached the inflammatory stage, the invalid has just cause to deplore the inefficiency of medicines which could neither uproot the disease at its outstart, nor avert its dreaded climax. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a medicine which, without the danger attending the use of some of the ordinary specifics for this malady is infinitely more safe and more effective. Used at the start, it checks the progress of the disease, and expels, or neutralizes, the rheumatic virus in the blood Who so takes it incurs no risk, and is sure to be benefited. Valuable in rheumatism it is equally efficacious as a remedy for neuralgia, liver complaint, indigestion, chills and fever, debility, and inactivity of the kidneys and bladder. It may, also, be relied upon to promote sleep and appetite.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

RED. BLUE.

Indications for Atlanta and Georgia, taken at 1 o'clock, a. m.: Fair weather, slightly cooler on coast, stationary temperature in interior. Alabama and Mississippi: Fair weather, slightly cooler, northerly winds. Tennessee and Kentucky: Generally fair weather, slightly warmer.

TODAY'S issue of THE CONSTITUTION is, almost certainly, the only twelve-page Sunday paper that THE CONSTITUTION will issue during the fall and winter months. It takes sixteen pages to carry our quota of news matter and advertisements for Sunday, and then it is usually crowded. The fall rush begun several weeks ago, and our Sunday paper was accordingly enlarged; and but for an unavoidable mistake, to-day's issue would have consisted of sixteen pages. Two carloads of paper, which have been on the way several days, are delayed on the road, and it being impossible to obtain in the city a supply of the kind required for the sixteen-page paper, we were reluctantly forced to the twelve-page paper. It shall not occur again.

ATLANTA has no citizen more devoted to his interests than John Tyler Cooper. In Atlanta he was raised, and with it he has grown, but much of the city's growth is due to his sagacity and wisdom. Three years ago he was elected a member of the city council, and during his term he made such a reputation as a fearless, honest, faithful representative that his people would not permit him to retire when his term expired, but placed him in the aldermanic board by a vote so large that his most sanguine friends were astonished. In the board he has worked to serve his city as he did in the council. As chairman of the ordinance committee he has proven one of the best the city has ever had. As a member of the finance committee he has proven himself safe and conservative. In private life his one aim is to be affable and pleasant and honest with all who are thrown in contact with him. In official life he is the same and with these qualities is fearless, faithful and energetic. Such men as Mr. Cooper are wealth to any city.

Atlanta and the Technological.

Whatever may be the result of the competition for the location of the technological school, Atlanta's position is a creditable one. She has bid $70,000 cash—$50,000 in $2,500 annual payments for twenty years, and $10,-... This is a total of $130,000, a ... for a city that is said to be ... pretty good bid ... investigation and sick and distracted. ... have made the ... Atlanta does not fear ... argument. We believe we ... best bid and offer the best inducements. If this is true, investigation will only make it all the plainer. The commissioners will not be misled. They will examine for themselves, and decide for themselves. It is perhaps best that they have decided to take a trip to each of the cities in competition. It is necessary that the school shall start out with the sympathy and good will of the whole state. This will be best secured when the people feel assured that the location of the school has not been decided on hastily or without the fullest research. Wherever the school goes it will have the earnest and honest support of Atlanta and THE CONSTITUTION. It is, in our opinion, the most important educational interest in the state, and as enthusiastic as would be the welcome Atlanta would give the school if it were brought here, she will stand by it steadfastly, no matter where it goes.

CONSTITUTIONALS.

Pencil Paragraphs and Editorial Shortstops Caught on the Run.

Did you ever hear of a man who was United States senator for just one minute? THE CONSTITUTION had a visitor yesterday with that record—ex-Governor Walker, of Florida. It happened this way: In 1874 the legislature was republican by one majority. Governor Walker was the democratic candidate for senator. After tedious balloting, a republican member from Tallahassee, named Avery, voted "Walker."

This elected him. When the ballot was closed the crowd became wild with enthusiasm. The cheering, which lasted fully a minute, prevented the chairman from announcing the vote. In the meantime the republicans had surrounded Avery, and he soon declared that he had not voted for Governor Walker, but for Sam Walker, a small republican politician about town. This left Governor Walker one short of an election. Finally, Mr. Jones, the present senator, was put up, captured the needed vote and was elected.

I recalled this occurrence to Governor Walker yesterday. He smiled and said: "It was a curious experience. I was walking in the capitol grounds when I heard a tremendous uproar. I supposed this meant my election. My friends came rushing down the steps to carry me in triumph into the representative hall. I made my way with such composure as I could command through the shouting crowds, only to find when quiet was restored that Avery had declared his vote was not for me but for Sam Walker. My friends were disposed to be violent with him, but I simply said to him:

"You are, sir, the only radical that ever made me feel good for even one minute."

At one of the post-bellum state fairs, a man from Echols county brought up to the judges a razor-back piney woods hog. The hog's head was as long as a barrel, and his hams were not bigger than pan cakes. He presented a lively contrast to the fat hogs in the ring and the judges asked the owner what he meant by entering such an animal?

"I enter him as the best hog for this country."

"What qualities do you claim for him?"

"Speed!"

"What has speed to do with a hog?"

"Why, no hog will do for the wire grass that can't out run a nigger!"

One of the most affecting incidents of the debate before the Technological commissioners, was Mr. T. W. Rucker's interjection in his eloquent speech advocating Athens as the best place for the new school. He said: "And then besides Athens has prohibition!" Crossing his hands before and lifting his eyes he added: "Thank God!" This noble sentiment so fitly spoken awoke the warmest applause!

One of the notable graves at Washington, Georgia, is that of Alexander Hamilton Webster, the man who prepared the late Alexander Hamilton Stephens for his entrance into college. When the ladies of Washington, moved by the evident ability of young Aleck Stephens, decided to educate him, he was sent to Mr. Webster, a young Presbyterian minister, who had gone to Washington from the north. The two became very great friends, but were separated by the death of Mr. Webster, which occurred in 1828. It was the custom in those days to bury a deceased pastor near his church. Accordingly, visitors to the Presbyterian church at Washington can now see in the vestibule a marble box and slab marking the grave of Mr. Webster. In addition to the name and dates, the inscription is simply "A Congregation in Tears and a Pastor in Glory." The inscription was composed by Daniel Chandler. It is generally believed that Mr. Stephens was named for the great Alexander Hamilton. Not so. His name originally was Alexander Stephens and he was named for his grandfather. His love for his teacher was so great, however, that he took a part of his name, calling himself Alexander Hamilton Stephens. Alexander Hamilton was a federalist. Alexander Hamilton Stephens was a Jeffersonian demo... ...crat—quite a different thing.

Hon. Mark B... ...Blandford, of the Georgia supreme court, ha... ...s a son who was recently engaged in a ...pendous effort to master Greek. One night the young man was poring over his lesson, sorely perplexed and in dire distress. In the room was a negro boy, whose business around the place was to curry and feed the horses, black boots and do similar work. The negro listened for quite a while to the walls of the young student and then said:

"Marse Bob, I can read that for you."

"You!" exclaimed the young man. "You're a fool; this is Greek."

"Can't help it," replied the negro, "I can read it."

The book was handed to him, and the negro read right along. When he had finished Judge Blandford asked:

"Where in the mischief did you learn to read Greek?"

"At the Atlanta University," quietly responded the negro.

With all his knowledge of Greek, the boy was only a doer of chores—a much more commendable occupation, however, than loafing or stealing.

"Buddie," said a benevolent old man to a very small boy who was standing on the custom house steps last night, "what are you out so late for, my son."

"I'm skeered ter go hum!" replied the boy, beginning to cry.

"Tut, tut, what are you afraid of?"

"Skeered er my maw!" shrieked the boy.

"Dear me, why are you afraid of your mother?"

"Skeered cause I ain't got nair nickle to cair 'r!"

The youngster got the nickle, and the benevolent man moved on.

It is understood that ex Speaker Little, of Muscoge, will be pressed by his friends for speaker of the next house. Hon. John S. Davidson, president pro tem of the last senate will, it is said, be a candidate for president next time, as President Carlton goes to congress. No candidate for secretary of the senate has offered yet except Colonel Bill Harris, of Worth. Colonel Mark Hardin, the veteran clerk of the house, will have an opponent in the person of Mr. James Cooper Nesbit, of Dade.

It is said that the hardest question ever put to the Hon. Alexander H. Stephens was put by Horace Greely. The question was about slavery. The great editor said:

"You must admit that anything is wrong which prevents the fullest development of the human intellect."

The reply of Mr. Stephens is not known, but he was doubtless equal to the emergency.

One of the new-fangled, educated spiders has taken up his quarters in the mailing room of THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION. After spinning his web he wrote across his front yard this legend: "100,-000." The spider is a prophet and knows his business. The circulation of THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION will be 100,000 before the ides of March.

Here is a good little war story—

Jabe Mathis of the Thirteenth Georgia was a good soldier, but one day when the confederates were retreating from the gory field of Gettysburg, Jabe threw his musket on the ground, seated himself by the roadside and exclaimed with great vehemence:

"I'll be dashed if I walk another step! I'm broke down! I can't do it!" And Jabe was the picture of despair.

"Git up, man," exclaimed his captain, "don't you know the yankees are following us? They'll git you sure!"

"Can't help it," said Jabe, "I'm done for. I'll not walk another step!"

The confederates passed along over the crest of a hill and lost sight of poor, dejected Jabe.

In a moment there was a fresh rattle of musketry and a renewed crash of shells. Suddenly Jabe appeared on the crest of the hill moving like a hurricane and followed by a cloud of dust. As he dashed past his captain that officer yelled:

"Hello, Jabe, thought you wasn't going to walk any more?"

"Thunder!" replied Jabe, as he bit the dust with renewed vigor, "you don't call this walking do you?"

Somehow when the great pile of northern exchanges is dumped on my table every day, I am first drawn irresistibly to the pretty little pink News of Philadelphia. The News is one of the brightest and most entertaining papers in the country. It is always good humored without being flippant and that is saying a great deal for a newspaper. Mr. E Brainerd, who made many friends in Atlanta while on the staff of THE CONSTITUTION several years ago, is one of the editorial writers on the News and is doing much to increase the excellence of the paper.

Horace Bradley has made for Harper's an excellent drawing of a Primitive Baptist foot-washing. Mr. Bradley attended a service in Cobb county and made sketches from life. The picture will no doubt attract much attention when it comes out, as it is to be a double page illustration, and is a new subject with the artists.

Quails are in the market. Every restaurant in the city is serving quail on toast while the birds hang in front of every market. In view of the fact that the quail could not be killed until October 1st his arrival in such numbers is rather unexpected

The speech of the Solicitor-General, Charley Hill, in the Wall murder case, on Friday is the "talk of the town." It is praised in the highest terms by those who heard it, and declared to be inferior in no way to the amazing speeches of his lamented father. Mr. Hill's growth in reputation as an advocate in the past two years may be called phenomenal.

Mr. W. A. Graham, the well known young druggist of Peters street, is probably the best exponent in the city of the success which attends the well directed efforts of an energetic young business man. He came to Atlanta fourteen years ago, a mere child, and at once began work at a nominal salary. He started in on the principle of saving half of what he made, and soon accumulated enough to start him to school. By working in the day and studying at night he was enabled to extend his education in his chosen profession. He saved enough to get a thorough pharmaceutical education in the colleges and hospitals of New York, and, returning to Atlanta, established himself in business. He came to Atlanta without a dollar, and now has one of the best drug establishments in the city. He is practically out of debt, and his business is daily increasing. He belongs to one of the oldest South Carolina families, and probably has as many friends as any young man in the city. Any young man can do as well if he makes a similar beginning and exercises the same wisdom in his business transactions.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.

The Father of Gov. McDaniel Visits the Department of Agriculture.

Among the visitors at the department of agriculture yesterday, was Hon. I. O. McDaniel, of Bartow county, who is spending a few days in the city, the guest of his distinguished son, Governor H. D. McDaniel. He seemed much interested in the varied exhibit of the productions of the grand old commonwealth, to the prosperity of which the wise administration of his son has added no little. Mr. McDaniel is a gentleman of the old school, whose life has been spent amid rural scenes, to which, doubtless, is due the erect form on which the weight of passing years rest so lightly.

While gazing with admiring eyes at the mammoth squash on exhibition at the department, he gave the following account of an immense yield of pumpkins produced from one vine, in his garden, several years ago. He said:

"The vine was a volunteer, and came up in a low place, among other vegetables, in my garden. Being of a vigorous growth, and thinking it belonged to the kershaw family, I concluded to leave it and see what it would do. It was not long in running over everything else, so to restrain it within reasonable limits I cut off the growing ends of the runners, thus confining it to an area of about ten feet square. It soon began to bear, and as the young fruit developed, proved to be pumpkins. As a matter of curiosity, I kept an accurate account of the weight of each matured pumpkin as it was plucked and at the close of the season footed up the result. The crop produced by the single vine was 549 pounds of matured pumpkin. The ... were thirty ... and ... averaged 15 pounds and 10 ounces, though the largest weighed in the neighborhood of 40 pounds.

COVINGTON AND MACON.

John H. Inman Institutes Suit Against Contractor E. C. Machen.

NEW YORK, October 2—[Special.]—John H. Inman, on behalf of his firm, Messrs. Inman, Swann & Co., has brought suit, and had attachments served against E. C. Machen, the reputed contractor of the Covington and Macon railroad, claiming a considerable sum of money under their contract made last January, to procure for him $270,000 upon the securities of the road. Inman states that Machen sets up a plea of usury. Mr. Inman expresses the kindest feelings toward the city of Macon and the people locally interested along the line of this road. He feels certain that this road will be completed and that Macon will not only get her northern connection, but will shortly have a line into Florida. Mr. Greene, the president of this road, is regarded by him as one of the rising young men of New York.

The East and West Road.

CEDARTOWN, Ga., October 2—[Special.]—Mr. E. S. Safford, an engineer from Boston, Mass., supposed to be sent here by New York parties, will begin the survey of the East and West extension between Birmingham and Broken Arrow on Monday next, assisted by Chief Engineer Ruff and his corps of the East and West railroad.

As the East and West people claim to know nothing about this arrangement, there is still a mystery. What does it mean?

Gone to Savannah.

Mr. H. S. Merritt, who has for several years been a resident of this city, left yesterday morning for Savannah, to accept a position with A. R. Altmayer & Co., one of the largest dry goods houses in the south. In Mr. Merritt's departure Atlanta loses one of her best citizens—a man who was honored and respected by all who knew him. As a salesman there was none more popular than he, and the very large trade which he controlled is the best evidence of the confidence and esteem in which he is held by the very best of our citizens. As a Christian, he was one of the most earnest workers, having been actively connected with the Marietta Street mission for the past two years. Thoroughly conscientious and consistent in his daily walk, he has exerted an influence for good upon those with whom he has associated, which will not soon be forgotten. We regret to lose such men; their places are hard to fill.

Our best wishes for his prosperity go with him, and we commend him to the good people of Savannah as one who is true in every sense.

CAPITOL NOTES.

The railroads that paid their taxes into the state treasury were the Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville, $608.41, and the Talbotton railroad, $156.99.

The number of applications for payments to maimed confederate soldiers received at the executive office yesterday was one hundred and thirty.

Fine Goods.

Hunnicutt & Bellingrath have always taken a pride in keeping the finest and best of everything. Their brass and fancy Jappaned coal vases, brass fire sets, andirons and fenders, umbrella stands, etc., are the finest and best assortment ever seen in Atlanta. They buy such quantities of them they are able to offer them to their customers as cheap as you can buy an inferior article. They should be seen to be appreciated.

To the Voters of Cobb County.

I have known A G Dempsey for more than thirty years, and can say he is a man of extra energy and solid worth, in whom we all can trust, and if elected to represent us in the next legislature he will prove an extra good man for Cobb county. The laboring man will find no better man in either house to look after his interests than A G Dempsey. Let us all rally to his support. Very respectfully, J. H. RUFF, Smyrna, Ga.

THE POWDER IGNITES

AND THE STONE MOUNTAIN BLAST ENTERTAINS A PARTY.

A Party of Atlantians Go Up to the Mountain to See it Blown Up—The Blast Set Off and the Bed of Granite Feels It—How the Blast Was Fired and How it Looked.

Stone mountain still stands. The four tons of giant powder exploded deep down in the solid bed of rock yesterday had but little effect upon the granite bed.

The explosion occurred exactly at four o'clock, with one hundred persons looking on, while five times that many at a safe distance awaited with fear the result. Over a half hundred Atlantians were present when it took place and were all pleased with the entertainment. The Atlanta delegation went up to the mountain on the Georgia road fast mail in the afternoon. The train left the union passenger depot at 2:45 and reached the town at the base of the mountain in thirty-five minutes. It did not require for the delegation to leave the train and ascend the platform at the depot from where they could look upon the mountain. The point at which the deep hole had been sunk was in plain view and the workmen could be seen moving about the place. In the distance the men looked like mere specks but they were a fascination for the people in the town and at every house a crowd was gazing toward them.

The people of Stone Mountain have not been particularly partial to the trial of the force of gunpowder when confined thirty-five feet down in a solid bed of granite. In fact they have been quite uneasy ever since the blast was suggested and as the grew near they began to to grow nervous. When the Atlanta delegation reached the town it was the signal for the natives to turn out. They knew by the appearance of the strangers that the hour they so much dreaded was at hand, and in knots of two, three and a dozen they watched everything that was transpiring. In five minutes after the Georgia road train pulled away from Stone Mountain an engine drawing two flat cars loaded with belgian block rolled around the curve in the Stone Mountain road and came to a halt under a rough board shed. Sam Venable quickly climbed upon the machine, and, catching the lever like a trained engineer started towards the main line and brought his train to a standstill alongside the Georgia road depot. As the train rolled up, Bob Clayton, the city engineer, said:

"Them things is Sam Venable's palace cars."

"Which things?" asked Fred Busch.

"Them," said Mr. Clayton, pointing to the flat cars loaded with belgian blocks.

RIDING ON BELGIAN BLOCKS.

Just then the train came to a halt and Sam Venable pushed his head through a cab window getting out.

"All 'board for the big hole and four tons o' powder in Stone mountain."

The people began to climb upon the flat cars and in a few seconds were comfortably seated upon the large granite stones. Then Mr. Venable pulled the bell cord and opening the throttle started his train for the mountain. The train rolled along at a four mile gate and as it moved, the probable results of the explosion. There were on the train:

THOSE ABOARD DISCUSSED

Hon. Charles Hill, Hon. Henry Knowles, Fred Bush, Carl Weinmeister, Mack Sharp, Alf Vernoy, Gus Dues, A Beerman, John Domini, W. H. Greeger, J. W. Erwin, C. D. Horn, C. Watters, Hon. Tyler Cooper, Mrs. H. Knowles and sister, John Knox, Steve Grady, Tom McCandless, Dr. Huntley, J. H. Griffin, C. Beerman, William Lawler, J. P. Averill, Toledo, O., W. B. Miles, Robert Clayton, T. A. Robinson.

The train reached the base of the mountain, just below the bed of powder, in a few minutes and, when it came to a halt, Mr. William Venable arose and said:

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, the blast is up there where you see those men gathered together. The battery will be located on the other side of the hole. Now those who want to go up can do so, and those who don't need not. After the explosion if we aint all killed we will go around on the other side of the mountain."

HOW THEY SAW IT.

The party began leaving the cars, and a few started up the hill. Mr. Cooper was among the number, but before he had gone far Mr. Knowles called him, saying:

"Tyler, your chances for the mayor's chair are too good to risk death before the election. Come back, old boy, and I'll vote for you."

Mr. Cooper hesitated a second, and, turning about, walked towards Mr. Knowles, who was walking away from the mountain. They both ... continued their walk, too vailed by short runs until they were fully a mile away.

Mr. Wm. Venable, Mr. Horn, Captain Clayton, and E. C. Bruffey, of THE CONSTITUTION, ascended the side of the mountain to where they found Mr. Pot Venable and a half dozen hands. The hole had been filled to

of the earth, and the place to mark it was the small square box which extended to the bottom of the hole, and through which the wire ran. The wires were coiled about the top of the box. A man stood by with a large square box—the battery. After reaching the place Mr. Venable turned to his brother asking:

"Is everything ready Pot?"

"Yes, it's all right," answered the superintendent.

"Well, now, if any one here wants to go down let him skin out," said Mr. Venable, "or go up with us."

The entire party started up the rocky hill except one man. He remained behind to connect the wires. Mr. Pot Venable led the party up the hill, straightening the wire as he went. He was closely followed by the party for about three-hundred feet, when they came to the end of the wire where upon the ground. Mr. Venable then retraced his steps all way to the hole and called out:

"Make that connection and move."

The man caught the short pieces of wires rolled around the top of the box with one hand and the long wires which led up the hill in the other and spliced them. He did his work quickly and correctly and then ascended the hill until he came to the battery. Mr. Pot Venable joined the wires to the battery and everything was in readiness. The machine sat upon the ground. Mr. Horne, Mr. Will Venable, Mr. Pot Venable, Mr. Clayton and others were around it. Mr. Venable took his watch from his pocket and, looking at it, said:

"It wants three minutes to four. We will let her go at four."

"Who'll set her off?" asked his brother.

"You," answered Mr. Will Venable.

"I guess you'd better do it," was the reply.

"Let Bruff set her off."

"No, thank you. I have an important engagement with Charley Rose this afternoon at six."

"Let Horn do it," said Mr. Pat Venable.

"Don't believe I care to," was the answer.

THROWING HEADS AND TAILS.

The four turned to find Captain Clayton, but he was half way up the mountain, and in order to settle it they decided to throw heads or tails. Mr. Horn lost, and like a soldier who had enlisted for the war, he stepped up to the battery. The others fell back a few seconds, and Mr. Venable, with watch in hand, remarked:

"Just a half minute!"

During that half minute every heart on the hill quickened its beat, and every cheek paled. No one knew what the result would be, and with more or less fear they waited. Each one professed a strong belief in the theory that no damage would be done, but all were uneasy. Finally the hands of the clock pointed to four, and Mr. Venable said:

"Let her go!"

As he spoke, he shut his mouth tight, closed his eyes, and stepped back. Mr. Horne was standing

WITH BOTH HANDS UPON THE BATTERY.

He was looking far away, and thinking that, may be, he had thrown head and tails for the last time.

As the words dropped from Mr. Venable's lips, Mr. Horn pushed down with all his force, and then sprang back. As he dropped his hands from the battery there was a strong tremor of the earth under the feet of those upon the hill. The huge stones appeared to quiver, rock to and fro for a second, and then all was still. Just as the stone appeared to recover itself and settle, a low, far-away report came, and all knew that the spark sent along the wire had done its work. The party on the hill looked at each other a second as though uncertain whether it was all over. Then they started for the hole. When within a few feet of it they noticed that the heavy stones upon the surface had been moved. At the hole they saw the mouth filled with dirt and belgian blocks. Underneath they heard similar to that made by one stone sliding over another, and then in a few seconds saw heavy sections of stone creep down the hill short distance. Mr. Horn, who is experienced in blasting knew what it meant and turning to Mr. Venable said:

"That's good, the stone has been crushed and it moves slightly. Hear."

"Yes I hear it," said Mr. Pot Venable, "it has moved; listen, hear it."

The gentlemen interested then examined the hill closely. Above the hole but little could be found to show that the powder had done any good, but below it seams and crevices running in all directions were found. Some were very small, while others were all of one eighth to one-fourth of an inch. Heavy stones weighing six and eight tons which have rested upon the mountain side for years were moved down towards the base as much as six and eight inches. While the gentlemen were yet examining the side of the hill smoke was detected creeping through the crevices, and this convinced them that good work had been accomplished.

The mountain, however, was not blown up.

HOW IT LOOKED TO OTHERS

The party congregated below the foot of the mountain could not see those who were around the battery, and were compelled to wait until the powder was fired to know that the battery had been applied. The first intimation they had of it was seeing a small cloud of dust arise from the hole. Then the side of the mountain was seen to quiver a second, and the report came, but it was not loud. No stones were thrown into the air, and but for the dust, the slight quiver of the hill, and the dull report, the party would never have known that the blast had gone off.

After Mr. Venable was satisfied as to the result the party again boarded the train and the circuit of the mountain was made. The steep, almost perpendicular side of the hill and the great quarry at the end of the road were greatly admired by those present. The train returned to the depot where Sam Venable set up a bucket of water with a belgian stone in it.

The residents of Stone Mountain who were watching for the explosion barely heard the report.

Lemon Elixir.

A PLEASANT LEMON DRINK.

Cures indigestion, headache, malaria, kidney disease, fever, chills, loss of appetite, debility and nervous prostration, by regulating the liver, stomach, bowels, kidneys and blood.

Lemon Elixir is prepared from the fresh juice of Lemons, combined with other vegetable liver tonics, cathartics, aromatic stimulants and blood purifiers.

President National Bank

McMinnville, Tenn., writes: In my opinion from experience in my wife's case, your Lemon Elixir has few if any equals and no superiors in medicine for the regulation of the liver, stomach and bowels. Your Lemon Hot Drops are superior to any remedies we have ever been able to get for my wife's throat and lung disease. I feel certain, and so does she, that your Lemon Elixir and Lemon Hot Drops have been the means of greatly prolonging her life. We have not the least idea that she would now be living only for these remedies. Had she only used these remedies sooner she would long since, in my opinion, have been well, and been saved the great suffering she has undergone. Truly, W. H. MAGNESS.

John Keely "The Leader of Low Prices"

Makes his bow through our columns today and in his usual, simple, business like way, tells the story of his bargains, with a clearness and fullness which impresses the reader at once with its truth! John Keely's advertisements are at all times, pleasant things to read, bristling as they do with a high order of thought, and clothed in choice language for which they have long since won distinction. He never makes an unkind, ungentlemanly thrust at a competitor. It is in his goods and prices, he says, that he carries on a war with them. His methods are all his own, and his liberality in dealing, is proverbial! He never allows a customer to go away dissatisfied. His stock was never so large, nor so handsome as this season, and even now, his trade is excellent! A careful reading of his large notices in this paper will amply repay the trouble which it may occasion. His millinery opening occurs on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, and promises fairly to be a most interesting event. More success to John Keely! He deserves it all and more too!

Look out! Don't be fooled, you can buy the great Salvation Oil for twenty-five cents.

The certificate of Mr. G. B. McGaughey in reference to the condition and business of the Atlanta Elevator company, which appeared in yesterday's CONSTITUTION, speaks well for that enterprise. It should receive the liberal support of all the grain merchants.

Georgia.

Georgia is becoming famous for her grand and stately houses, decorated in the most princely style of modern and Grecian arts. Her gilded domes, reflecting far into the distance the glorious orb of day, her majestic spires, towering 'mid the heavens, stationed in all parts of her vast domains, I like a guide post, pointing to the world her glorious destiny; the palaces that deck the streets of her resplendent cities, to the modest homes of the farmers; all are being furnished with wall paper, screens, room molding, &c., by E. An Attractive Store.

The bookstore of John M. Miller, under the opera house, has been enlarged and beautified, and is now one of the most attractive in the city. Mr. Miller's stock of books, periodicals, magazines and stationery is complete in every respect, and is not excelled by any in the south. You can call for nothing in his line but that he has it. His goods are new and fresh, and his stock always full. He has a large line of Shannon letter files given up by all to be the best file made. Mr. Miller also keeps the latest designs in "papeteries." A Successful Enterprise.

Among the many successful industries of this city very few have met with the remarkable success of the Logan broom company. Starting a few years ago in a small way, under the able management of Messrs. Frank R. Logan, P. C Cashman and Archie H. Smith, the concern has grown into the largest of its kind in the entire south. Logan's Patent Lock Brooms have become the standard in the south and southwest. They manufacture a large variety of brushes as well as brooms.

The Greatest Circus of Them All.

The great Doris' circus will exhibit at Atlanta on Wednesday, October 27 instant, and we announce it with pleasure, for we know this show. We print the following indorsement from the Boston Herald of recent date, one of the leading papers of the world:

"John B. Doris' circus and menagerie had a full attendance last night at Chelsea. In fact the large tent scarcely held the vast throng. Miss Stokes, whose wonderful riding has been the chief topic in Boston society, rode, and rode in a manner which proclaimed her, indeed, a rider graceful, fearless and beautiful. The applause was tremendous. Mr. James Robinson also, who is known the world over as the champion bareback rider, performed in a way never before seen by a Boston audience—at least not since Mr. Robinson's last visit. He is without doubt a finished artist, defying the most captious criticism. Every department of the circus and menagerie is conducted on first class principles. Each performer does his or her work in a master-piece way. We looked in vain for a bad or commonplace act. As a circus, it is certainly a success, and in fact exceeded our expectations."

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

Bonds, Stocks and Money.

CONSTITUTION OFFICE,
ATLANTA, October 2, 1886.

There is a widespread and almost universal feeling of confidence in an immediate revival of business, and everybody happy over the prospect. Our local cotton mills, we understand, are finding ready buyers for their products at a fair profit, and between the mill managers and employes a most amicable feeling exists. In other lines of manufactures orders are fully up to capacity, and with the influx of money which is now being felt and rapidly growing in volume, our people will soon have all they can do to meet the demands of buyers.

In the financial feature of our business interests there is nothing of great interest to say. Investors are looking out for securities, and in some instances taking advantage of the slight recession in prices.

The old well known list of bonds and stocks takes precedence of course, but some are buying new securities because they are believed to be safe, and pay better than the older ones.

Central railroad stock has been in the dumps all the week, failing to go up and refusing to go down. With easy money there will probably be another season of activity in Central.

Net earnings of the Marietta and North Georgia road will exceed $7,000 for September, and trains will, it is said, be running to Murphy, North Carolina, by the 15th instant.

Americus, Preston and Lumpkin extension to Antioch will be completed and in operation in two or three weeks, and a large business is now awaiting movement. This ten miles will be put in first-class condition at once, and the further extension toward Chattahoochee river pushed rapidly along.

New York exchange buying at ⅛@¼ off, selling at ¼ premium.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, October 2.—The market this morning opened with a much stronger tone, and the impression that the trunk line matter will be amicably arranged at the presidents' meeting next week gained ground. The deal in New York and New England made further progress today, and, notwithstanding the fact that seven material reactions occurred, stock is 5¼ per cent higher tonight, being alone in closing strong. The opening was firm, prices generally showing advances of ⅛ to ⅝ per cent. Western Union, however, was up ⅝ and Jersey Central down ¾ per cent. There was some hesitation in early trading; but, extraordinarily, strength in New England and Western Union rallied the market, and the upward movement was not checked till the afternoon, when early advances were generally lost. There was some little improvement in the last hour, but the market closed barely steady. Trading in New England was nearly double that of any other stocks, its sales reaching 65,960 shares. Closing prices show an irregular change, but advances are more numerous and important. New England is up 5¼ per cent, New York Central 1⅛, Michigan Central 1 and others fractional amounts. St. Paul shows the heaviest decline. Its loss was ¾ per cent. Sales, 374,000 shares.

Exchange 482. Money 2@7. Sub-treasury balances: Coin, $126,258,000; currency $26,379,000. Governments quiet; 4s 128⅞; 3s 100 bid. State bonds dull.

NEW YORK, October 2—C. L. Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: Trading was light generally and the market barren of any striking features. A full run of receipts at the ports for the week with pretty free offerings against them tending to check the demand somewhat, but a rather firmer Liverpool and a few desultory frost reports from the south had a sustaining influence to keep values at about last evening's figures, and closed the market fairly steady.

NEW YORK, October 2—The total visible supply of cotton for the world is 1,203,357 bales, of which 872,857 bales are American, against 1,206,885 bales and 881,185 respectively last year. Receipts at all interior towns 99,329 bales. Receipts from plantations 170,865. Crop in sight 413,919 bales.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, October 2—The markets ruled weaker today. There was free selling in all the pits, and closing figures were about the lowest in nearly every instance. In wheat there was a denial of the report that purchases for export had been made yesterday, and with a subsidence of the war feeling of yesterday, offerings of long property became very free, prices closing up about ⅞c under yesterday. Receipts continued fairly large and export clearings very light. Estimates as to the visible supply varied from 2@2¼ millions increase.

Corn ruled weak and lower in sympathy with wheat, and, owing to estimated large receipts next week, prices declined 1⅛@1⅜c and closed at nearly inside figures.

In oats the decline for the day was ⅛@¼c, many tired holders throwing large quantities on the market.

Provisions were weak, mess pork selling off 40@45c on the whole range, rallied 7½@10c and closing quiet, eliminating nearly the last vestige of the recent boom from the market.

Offerings of lard were quite free, and prices declined 15@20c.

The closing in the pits was dull and easy.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.

Bridge Building and Iron Working Grounds, Plant, etc., to be Sold at Public Outcry.

IN PURSUANCE OF THE TERMS OF, AND UNDER the powers conferred by, a certain trust deed, or mortgage, executed on January 23d last, by the Atlanta Bridge and Iron Works to L. J. Hill and R. H. Richards, as trustees for certain bondholders therein named, the undersigned, L. J. Hill, trustee as aforesaid (the said R. H. Richards declining to act further in said matter), will sell upon the premises, at public outcry, on Thursday, the 25th day of November next, at 11 o'clock a.m., to the highest bidder for cash, if not before sold at private sale upon satisfactory terms being offered, the following described property, viz:

All that tract or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the city of Atlanta, which was deeded to E. M. Cravath and E. P. Smith by Wm. Jennings, trustee, and Francis M. Jennings, on the 19th day March, 1866, such deed being recorded in the clerk's office of Fulton superior court in book "H," page 708, and the said land being therein more fully described thus: "All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of Fulton, and state of Georgia, near the northeast limits of the city of Atlanta on the Marietta road, and bounded on the north by W. C. Moore, on the east by Peters and Brewer, and on the south by Griffith, now J. J. Morrison, and on the west by the right-of-way of the Western and Atlantic railroad, the same containing six acres, more or less, being the premises formerly owned and improved by George W. D. Cook, and conveyed by him to Adam Jones, and by Jones to James O. Harris, and by James O. Harris to grantors;" being the premises whereon are situated the Bridge building works and apparatus of the late firm of Wilkins, Post & Co., together with all and singular the buildings, fixtures and other rights, members and appurtenances thereto in any wise appertaining or belonging; and also the tools for use in the bridge-building and iron-working business situate on the above described premises, including machinery and other appliances; and also rolling mill machinery, including a one hundred-horse power engine, and nine-inch train, with housings, bed plates and brasses complete, also located upon the above described premises; and also the stock on hand and located on said premises, including bolts, bar iron, nuts, washers, plate and scrap.

The foregoing will be sold as the property of the Atlanta Bridge and Iron Works, in accordance with the provisions of the trust deed above referred to, which is recorded in the clerk's office of Fulton Superior Court, in book "O" of Mortgages, pages 622, 623 and 624, and to this record particular reference is hereby made.

Said trust deed was made to secure the payment of thirty thousand dollars, represented by sixty bonds of five hundred dollars each, with interest thereon at eight per cent per annum, represented by certain coupons attached to said bonds which coupons were to become due and payable on the first day of each succeeding July and January, beginning July 1st last and ending with the maturity of said bonds, viz: January 1, 1896. And in said deed it is provided that should the Atlanta Bridge and Iron Works fail to pay said bonds or any of the coupons at maturity, it hereby constitutes the said L. J. Hill and R. H. Richards trustees, as aforesaid, or their successors, its agents to sell said property at public or private sale, as they may deem will command the highest price and to execute titles thereto in the name of said The Atlanta Bridge and Iron Works, after having advertised the same for ninety (90) days in one of the daily newspapers of the city of Atlanta, and apply the proceeds from sale to the expenses incident thereto, and to the payment of said bonds and coupons, and if there be a balance remaining the same to be paid to it and its successors.

On July 1st last the coupons attached to each of said bonds, representing the interest then accrued thereon, became due and payable, but the same were not then paid, nor have they since been paid; and this sale is made for the purpose of carrying out the objects in said deed expressed.

Terms of sale, cash. L. J. HILL, Trustee.

WHO WINS?

A BUSINESS QUESTION ANSWERED BY AN INVESTIGATION.

Facts Which Interest the General Public.

Just now in Atlanta, when business is on a boom, it is a matter of great interest to the public to know exactly what men are riding on the top o the wave of success. We have from time to time kept our readers fully posted, and the leaders in each branch of business have been the subject of special notice in the columns of the paper.

Who are doing a large business, and doing it cheaply, in the line of gas fitting and plumbing is often asked. It can be easily answered. Guimarin, Paul & Gullatt, 5 North Broad street are practical plumbers and gas and steam fitters; do their own work and save money to their customers. In consequence of which in only seven months, since they have begun business, their work has grown to be one of the best in the city.

Their motto is "first class work, prompt attention and reasonable prices." Is it strange they have succeeded?

A special line of work is done on hydraulic elevators, steam pumps, power pumps, gas engines and lead burning.

HAVE THEIR HANDS FULL

with the fitting of a gas burner to a hydraulic elevator. Their work has given the most perfect satisfaction, and their prices have always suited. One of the special branches of work is the fitting of chandeliers, gas brackets, etc. The firm has on hand one of the most elegant stocks of such fixtures ever brought to Atlanta. The demand for goods in this line is so great that they are daily ordering a new lot, thus receiving all the latest styles and designs.

Messrs Guimarin, Paul & Gullatt recently fitted up residences for the following gentlemen: Messrs. W. D. Grant, John Clark, Jr., Hirsch Brothers, and Akers.

This is one of the firms that wins.

And how, do you ask?

There can be no reason for it except good work done and low prices charged.

It gives THE CONSTITUTION pleasure to recommend such a house to the people as one which is worthy of patronage, and as composed of young men who deserve success.

John Ryan offers tomorrow morning "Clark's" O. N. T. Spool Cotton at 35 cents dozen. Bargains in every department.

The Largest Store, the largest Stock and the Latest Styles in the south.

The cool wave has struck the city and everybody will want fresh meats for tomorrow. To meet the demand Echols & Richards, 86 Peachtree street, have had killed a large number of extra fine steeves, kids, lambs and pigs, so their supply will be large and fresh. Don't forget them, for they are prepared to suit any and everybody. All orders sent by telephone will be promptly filled. Telephone 693.

M. Kutz, of M. Kutz & Co., has left for New York, to secure the latest novelties in millinery goods for their fall opening. This is the third time Mr. Kutz went in the market this fall, and shows plainly that they do one of the biggest millinery businesses in the south.

John Ryan will offer tomorrow forty pieces, all wool, ladies cloths 54 inch wide at 60 cents yard. They are a bargain.

John Ryan is offering the biggest bargain in carpets you ever saw. Splendid ingrain carpets at 35, 40 and 50 cents. Also a few carpets made up, mismatched, that he offers at less than value.

HEADQUARTERS GEORGIA DIVISION, TRAVELERS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION, ATLANTA, GA., October 3.—To the Members of the T. P. A. and Other Commercial Travelers in Georgia: We are just in receipt of an appeal from Mr. Ellis C Green, president of the South Carolina division of the Travelers' Protective association, asking for aid for the commercial travelers living in Charleston who suffered from the recent earthquake.

President Green assures us that all have suffered, many losing nearly all their entire household effects. Commercial travelers are known the world over for their generosity, and we now ask you to come promptly to the assistance of our associates living in Charleston and once more put them upon their feet. We are not authorized to make an assessment; we need not resort to it; your generous impulses will prompt you to respond. Voluntary contribution in any sum will be gratefully received and acknowledged by Mr. Joe Hirsch, Atlanta, Ga., who will forward same to Charleston.

FOR SALE.

THE THOMPSON PROPERTY.

At auction Tuesday, October 19, at 4 o'clock, p. m., on the premises. This is unquestionably the most valuable and desirable piece of unimproved real estate on Peachtree street; situated at the intersection of Peachtree and West Peachtree streets, both of which are paved; gas and water mains all around it. Horse cars on one side and a splendid drive on the other. On the lot are fine shade trees, leaving the center vacant for a gentleman's elegant residence, such as can never be duplicated in Atlanta. What a delightful home this would be for a five story, up town family house, covering the entire square from Peachtree to Peachtree. There is a magnificent view from this piece of lot for miles away, with a bold kink down Peachtree into the busy thrift and activity of the city. Such property as this is rarely purchasable in Atlanta at any price. Capitalists should consider this sale and attend it. Home seekers will find this an exceedingly opportune time to buy the finest piece of property ever offered for years. Apply as our office for plats.

[K]AFFIR CORN.

ITS VALU[E] F[OR] F[O]RAGE AND FOR BREAD.

The Result of the Experiments Made in the Cultivation of [this] Grain—What Dr. J. H. Watkins, of Campbell County, Has Done—A Crop Suited to Poor Lands.

The experiments in agriculture in the south have been many, and have covered a great variety of subjects. Among the most interesting of these have been experiments with different members of the sorghum family in the hope that they might furnish a crop suitable for our thin lands, which would produce a reliable yield of forage and feed, and which might possibly be utilized for food for the people.

The experience of the many farmers in Georgia and other southern states with Milo maize, Egyptian wheat, dhourra corn, African millet and other varieties of sorghum, has been varied, and on hardly one of them is there now anything like a unanimous opinion favorable or adverse.

One of the latest and one of the most interesting experiments in this line has been made by Dr. J. H. Watkins, of Campbell county, Ga., with

KAFFIR CORN.

In the spring of 1877 a gentleman of foreign aspect called at the rooms of the Georgia state agricultural department and talked to Dr. Janes, the then commissioner, on the subject of cereals in the south. When he was informed that only in a few sections of the gulf states could wheat be profitably raised he recommended a trial of several varieties of sorghum which he had with him. He said some of them were largely used for food by whole tribe in Africa and made excellent bread. He was confident that they would grow well on Georgia soil, and would be found useful to our people in many ways.

Dr. Janes accepted with thanks the little envelopes of seed delivered him by this stranger. One of these envelopes labelled "Kaffir corn" was sent to Dr. Watkins with the request that he see what he could do with it. The doctor planted it in 1877, and has planted it every year since. The results of his cultivation of this crop has been discussed considerably in the agricultural papers, and by the farmers throughout the state. If "Kaffir corn" can do what is claimed by its friends, it is undoubtedly a blessing to the people of Georgia and other states with similar conditions of soil, climate and seasons.

To ascertain as near as he possibly could its true value a CONSTITUTION correspondent recently visited Dr. Watkins's farm, which lies six miles from the town of Palmetto. As he drove up to the place the doctor had just finished threshing one hundred and ninety-six bushels of Kaffir corn. An ordinary threshing machine had been used and in about three hours had done the work. The corn lay about a foot deep on the floor of the room in which it had been stored. It is a grain a little larger and considerably whiter than the grain of millo maize. It has a clean, rich look and when the door of the room was opened a pleasant odor, similar to that which floats over piles of fresh wheat, was very perceptible. The pile of chaff outside was remarkably small to have produced so much grain and proved how thick the corn grows on the heads.

Dr. Watkins was glad to take the correspondent over his entire acres so that he could see the corn as it grew. About half the crop had been gathered, but there was still from twelve to fifteen acres in stages of maturity. Very little of this is on good land—most of it is on land so poor that it would produce hardly anything, land which it would be folly to plant in corn without heavy fertilization. Only a few acres of the twenty-five which composed this crop had been fertilized at all. On one acre 2,000 pounds of compost were placed and there the yield was about fifty bushels. The effect of fertilization was very plain in a marked increase of the product though it made little if any difference in the quality of the grain.

A field of Kaffir corn is a pretty sight. The stalks average from four to five feet in height and are small and tender. They differ from nearly all the other varieties of sorghum in growing perfectly straight, instead of drooping or turning down at the top. The stalks end in heads which are generally from eight to ten inches long, slightly conical in form and remarkably full of the grain, unobscured by any beard, such as that of some of the other kinds. The erect stalks with their greyish white heads, compactly filled with grain give an impression of a vigorous, bountiful growth. On good land, or where fertilizers are used, the corn grows best when planted thick. It has one head and ripens regularly. Three pounds of seed will plant an acre. "Squire" Divine, who lives near Fairburn, planted three quarters of an acre last April, and will gather at least forty bushels in a few days. He says he has made at least three times the quantity of corn he could have produced under the same conditions on the same land.

An Alabama farmer in a recent letter to The Farm and Home of Louisville, says that two heads of his Kaffir will equal one ear of Indian corn and that he has had eight stalks of Kaffir where he could have had only one of corn. His yield is therefore four times as great from Kaffir as it would have been from corn. That it will far outproduce Indian corn under the same conditions seems to be an established fact. A comparison of quantity with wheat would be ridiculous in countries like Campbell where wheat culture has almost entirely been given up.

But the natural competitors of Kaffir corn are the members of the same vegetable family, and a comparison with these will show some very decided in favor of the Kaffir. One of the main difficulties with millo maize has been that it matures so late and is hard to cure. Kaffir corn planted as late as the first of June will mature in this climate. It can be cured either "in the dough," that is, just as the grain is full of milk, or at any subsequent stage of its growth. It is not tough like millo maize, which often has to be cut with hoes. It can be rapidly cut with any light blade; a large pocket knife is an excellent instrument for the work. Cut and allowed to lie three days in the field, it is cured into first-class forage. This advantage is also experienced in cutting the tops. The other species of sorghum are bent and drooping, so that they are hard to reach and awkward to handle. A hand finds the Kaffir corn erect and about shoulder high. He can cut it with great rapidity and with little exertion.

Though much smaller than millo maize it will bring an equal yield of fodder. The entire stalk is encased in fodder and the blades hang very thick. Neither millo maize nor any of the dhourra corns appear to make as good forage as Kaffir corn and none of them mature so early.

The entire stalk of the Kaffir is tender and nutritious. The grain is eagerly eaten by horses and hogs, and the ground has proved an excellent food for cows. For chickens it is found to be an excellent food; they fatten on it rapidly, and prefer it to almost anything that can be fed to them.

ITS EASY CULTIVATION

and reliable yield are points in its favor. None of the crop on Dr. Watkins's place had more than one hoeing this year. It stands drouth wonderfully, as do all the sorghums. The direst spell may retard its growth, but it quickens readily at the first rain, and appears to make up for lost time. These characteristics especially fit it for thin lands which have to endure long drouths every summer.

Dr. Watkins has this year an experimental patch in which his Kaffir corn is planted side by side with millo maize, dhourra corn of several kinds, Egyptian wheat and African millet. The condition of these specimens now argues strongly in support of Kaffir as better fitted for the lands in that section of the state.

But it is the possibility of becoming a useful which attracts most attention to Kaffir just now. As far back as 1864 Charles L. Flint, of Massachusetts, in his work on grasses, which is an acknowledged authority, said that some of the sorghums are almost as nutritious as wheat. It is known that the Kaffirs, from whom this corn takes its name, and other tribes, mainly depend on it and similar grains for their subsistence.

It had never occurred to Dr. Watkins to try Kaffir corn for bread until two or three years ago, when some friends were visiting his place. They were discussing the possible use of Egyptian wheat, or ivory wheat as it is some times called, for bread. Dr. Watkins noticed the white, heavily-laden heads of Kaffir corn as they stood beside the drooping Egyptian wheat with its darker grains, and thought:

"This is the best of all these varieties for human food."

So last fall he had some Kaffir corn ground. It yielded about twenty-eight pounds of flour and seven pounds of seconds to the bushel. The average yield of Georgia wheat to the bushel is hardly more than that. The Kaffir flour was made into light bread, biscuit, batter cakes, tea cakes and pound cake. These were eaten by the members of Dr. Watkins's family, and by members of their neighborhood; by them all were pronounced excellent. Some of the flour similarly prepared was served one day last winter to a number of gentlemen at the state agricultural department and there the verdict was decidedly in its favor. All during the present year it has been on the table at the home of Dr. Watkins eaten and relished by all the members of his family.

The writer tried it in Atlanta a year ago and recently at supper and breakfast at Dr. Watkins's house. It has a fine flavor, and but for its darker color, not one person in ten would doubt that it was wheat bread he was eating. Batter cakes made from it are very much like buckwheat. The preference for white bread is a prejudice which we all have to a greater or less degree, but a fair trial of Kaffir flour will convince anybody that it makes palatable, wholesome food. It looks like bread made of seconds of wheat, and has a very rich and pleasing taste. It is pronounced by all who have eaten it to be fully as digestible as wheat bread. Dr. Watkins could have sold barrels of this flour during the past year if he had had it. Kaffir bread is highly esteemed in Campbell county. Dr. Zellers, former member of the legislature from that county, says he intends to plant [illegible] next year at his place in Palmetto for use on his own table.

Mr. Tom Jackson and Mr. Joseph Hutchinson, of Campbell county, have tried it often and highly [illegible] its breadmaking qualities.

While Dr. Watkins firmly believes in the uses of Kaffir corn to our people he is a prudent, practical man who does not make rash claims for it. He does not pretend that it will rival wheat for general use, but he does say that in sections where wheat cannot be profitably raised and must be bought at high prices, good, sweet, wholesome bread can be made cheap and plentiful by the cultivation of Kaffir corn. This claim is amply sustained by the evidence of all who have given the bread a fair trial. It is all that Dr. Watkins claims. It will look well and taste well at any table, and as to its nutritive qualities there is not the least doubt. The grain of millo maize has been ground and tried in bread products. It makes pretty good batter cakes but inferior biscuit. No grain from the other sorghums will compare with Kaffir corn for bread-making. An experiment with some of this flour will surprise any one who has not tested it.

This species of corn, never tried until a few years ago in this region, has demonstrated its superiority for forage and feed for stock, and has attracted considerable attention as a possible bread supply. The seed was scattered to many localities throughout the south last year, and will be in still greater demand this year. The wonderful rates of its increase will soon make it common and its benefits will be in the reach of all. It is wonderfully prolific. From one grain Dr. Watkins gathered this year thirteen heads, making several pounds of corn. That was an extraordinary yield, but five heads frequently come from one grain.

Its rapid maturity makes it possible to raise two crops of forage from it. As soon as the stalk is cut it begins to put out again from the ground. When the heads are cut young shoots quickly come out on the side of the stalk just below the original head with a new crop of grain. While this crop can hardly mature, it makes excellent forage.

In view of what the gentlemen who are cultivating it in Georgia have shown of its capabilities, it seems to be perfectly fair to say, of Kaffir corn:

1. It is undoubtedly good for forage and stock and poultry feed.
2. It can be made into a palatable, wholesome bread.
3. It can be grown on land too poor to bring corn to any advantage, and the better the land the better its yield will be.

THE THEATRICAL WORLD.

Gossip of Events on the Stage, and Various Notes of Interest About Players.

Manager Abbey denies a report that a few days ago he was married to Miss Florence Gerard, the actress. Mr. Abbey's first wife was a Miss Kingsley. She came originally from North Hampton, Mass. She died four years ago, leaving two children, who now live with their grandmother, Mrs. Kingsley, in the Rutland apartment house, No. 251 West Fifth-seventh street. Mr. Abbey is known all over Europe and America as the man who first introduced the peerless Sarah Bernhardt to an American audience. He also brought over Mrs. Langtry and was Irving's manager on his first trip through the country. This season he and his partner, John B. Schoefell, who are joint lessees of the Park theater, Boston, will manage the charming Patti during her concert tour through the United States and Canada. Miss Gerard is under engagement this season to support Modjeska in "Nadjesda" and a number of other plays. She is of a decided blonde type, slight and willowy, and of medium height. Both behind the footlights and off the stage she is dashing, witty and quick at repartee.

Mr. Abbey is rather a hard man to interview. A New York Star reporter met him a day or two ago and asked:

"Are congratulations the order of the day, Mr. Abbey?"

"What about?" querried the manager, looking perplexed.

"Were not you and Miss Gerard married in London?"

Mr. Abbey hesitated a moment, and then asked whence the information came. He was told.

"It is not so," said Mr. Abbey, after apparently weighing the proposition well.

"But are you not at least engaged?"

"I have said that we are not married," and this was all that Mr. Abbey would vouchsafe on the subject.

MRS. LANGTRY'S ARRIVAL

Mrs. Langtry arrived in New York last Sunday on the Alaska. This is how she was received: Just at 5 o'clock a handsomely appointed carriage drove up to the Guion pier and a little footman in top hat, stunning waistcoat, blue coat and white trousers, with top boots, jumped from the front seat and ran to the closed gate of the pier. On the buttons of his coat were monograms, the letters L L interlaced, for he was Mrs. Langtry's footman, waiting for the arrival of his mistress on the steamer Alaska. Inside the gates there was a good crowd, almost all of whom were drawn by curiosity to see Mrs. Langtry, although a few came to greet returning and arriving friends. One of the most prominent persons in the crowd was Frederick May. After an hour's wait shouts at her berth, the Alaska was finally made fast across the end of the pier, and the passengers disembarked by a very steep gang plank down which they were saved from falling only by strong-armed stewards. Presently there was a general rush of people in advance of some one, and then, on the arm of Fred May, came Mrs. Langtry. Behind her came her mother and her sister, and behind them a tangle of maids, stewards and boxes, and then the crowd. Mrs. Langtry will open her season in New York tomorrow, playing "Peril" at the Fifth avenue.

HAMLET IN PARIS.

Paris is just now going to see "Hamlet." The New York Herald has an interesting cablegram about the first presentation of the play at the Theatre Francais. Munet Sully played the leading role and scored a great success. The Herald says the play itself was a little too long. The fencing scene was thoroughly artistic and scientific. It was directed in the minutest details by M. Vigeant, one of the most renowned masters of fence in Paris. The parades and salutes to the king and queen before the attack were the perfection of grace and skill.

Dramatic Notes.

A new tenor with a phenomenal voice has been discovered in Austria. He is a Prague policeman, and his name is Knockmama.

A good many Boston women, this season, it is noticed, bare their heads for a shower of blessings upon entering the theater, and leave their bonnets in the cloak room.

The arrival in this city, on Sunday, of Mrs. Dion Boucicault, professionally known as Miss Agnes Robertson, caused theatrical circles to conclude that Mrs Boucicault's legal battle with the veteran playwright and actor would be actively resumed, says the New York Herald.

Mrs. Langtry's former manager, Thomas Coe, has just died in London.

Rubenstein, the pianist, says he will not undertake any concert tours during the coming season.

In Normandy, last summer, Gounod amused himself by making for one of his little friends a huge kite, on which he inscribed a brief sonata composed for the purpose.

After Professor Chevreul, comes M. Dupin, the play writer, who was born in 1787, and well remembers the murder of the Princess Lamballe.

Miss Clara Morris has been playing in several of the larger towns of Pennsylvania, and has attracted very large audiences, who were enthusiastic over her performances. Miss Morris's health is better than it has been for several years past, and she is said never to have played with more fire and force than at present. She will reappear next week at the Union Square Theater, New York.

Men You Know—No. 15.

From the Atlanta Journal.

In the make up of the population of Atlanta Troup county has contributed some valuable material. Senator B. H. Hill, Dr. R. D. Spalding, Dr. Joseph Bradfield, Major Daniel N. Speer and others demonstrated that Troup county was peopled by men of the highest intellect and sterling integrity. Major D. N. Speer comes of Scotch-Irish lineage, and is now in the prime of life. He served during the confederate war with efficiency, rising rapidly from the position of captain to that of lieutenant-colonel. He was nominated for state treasurer in 18[7]0, and elected by an overwhelming majority over a popular opponent. He was re-elected treasurer the second time, and the record of his administration is one of the brightest chapters in the annals of Georgia's history. His honesty, integrity, energy and superb judgment was as marked in public life as it is in private life. He is conservative and prudent, never indulges in speculation and never leaves the plane of honest, square dealing. He has amassed a fortune of his own by honest industry and patient labor. He is now the president of the Exposition cotton mills, one of Atlanta's most important industrial enterprises, and his high character has given it a standing in the commercial world excelled by no enterprise in the country. Atlanta is proud of such a solid citizen as Major D. N. Speer, and Georgia will ever love to do him honor.

Steel Making in the South.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., October 2.—[Special.]—Jacob Reese, inventor of the Basic steel process, is in the city consulting with President Ensley, of the Pratt coal and iron company in connection with steel plant to be established at the Pratt mines. He believes steel making will give the south a great boom.

MILLER'S BRIGHT PROSPECT.

No Opponent of Consequence for His Place in the United States Senate.

NEW YORK, October 1.—[Special.]—The most interesting disclosure in politics recently is the news that Mr. Levi P. Morton, the banker and ex-minister to Paris, is likely to enter the lists for United States senator in place of Warner Miller, the present senior senator whose term expires with the close of the year. This is especially interesting as everybody not directly interested in pushing him for the place is confident that he stands no chance of winning. At the beginning of the year there was a host of persons who were thought to be striving for this high position. Among them were Chester A. Arthur, Congressman Hiscock of Syracuse, James D. Warren of the Buffalo Commercial, Anthony Drexel, the banker, Whitelaw Reid, the editor of the Tribune, Roscoe Conkling, Alonzo B. Cornell, ex-Attorney General Leslie W. Russell and Warner Miller himself. On the democratic side were such aspirants as David B. Hill, Francis Kiernan, Edward Cooper and others. Today nearly all except Miller have dropped out. The democrats need to carry about twenty close counties that have a perverse tendency to go republican and they long ago gave up all hope of being able to turn more than two or three of them in this quiet "off year." Then the republican competitors began to drop off for several reasons. For two years there has been a combination against Thomas C. Platt, in which the Arthur-Miller and Hiscock forces have joined either to humble him or to force him to deal more generously with his party than he has done since he has controlled the quarantine commission and the office of the health officer of this port.

Combinations in politics are usually made for one immediate end and usually fall to pieces when that end is accomplished, but this one, formed to elect a speaker of the assembly in 1885, continued to the election of Senator Evarts last year, and still remains in force. The parties to the union believe that they can re-elect Warner Miller. That decision throws out of the field Messrs. Warren, Hiscock and Arthur, the latter being too ill to run at any rate. Drexel and Russell are not talked of at all, and the only opponent of the original list that remained a fortnight ago was Whitelaw Reid, who is probably no longer deceived with a hope of election, though he wants the office badly, and was suspected of clearing the decks for action when he raised the rates of the Tribune compositors a month ago, a step he had refused to take when the managers of Mr. Blaine's campaign for the presidency besought him to pay better prices and make peace with the labor unions. And now comes the story that Mr. Levi P. Morton is about to enter the race against Warner Miller. A leading republican who saw him in Saratoga the other day, said that his talk showed that he was inclined to try for the office. Last year he entered almost as hopeless a contest against Mr. Evarts, his political backers and engineers being ex Senator Thomas C. Platt and Louis F. Payn, a noted convention worker who used to win as frequently as he now loses in politics. Today the same persons are urging him to go in for the place again, and it is understood that General George H. Sharp, ex surveyor of the port of New York, is soon to appear as the ostensible manager of the canvass. Mr. Morton has no chance to be elected as matters stand today. Warner Miller has a walk-over. Politics are uncertain, of course, and Mr. Miller may die or commit an indiscretion, but he is master of the situation at present. He has just performed a master stroke in preventing the holding of a state convention and the consequent reconstruction of the state committee, which is now dominated by Miller men. Those who wish well for Mr. Morton are very sorry that he turns so willing an ear to unwise advisers. He is very rich and very liberal in politics, and is constantly urged to pose for office, though his record before the people is almost as devoid of interest as a blank sheet of paper. Some who interest themselves in him whisper of his chances for the vice presidency in 1888, and others of the possibility of his being mayor of this city next year, but the senatorial aspiration seem to tempt him the most. In his case the scriptural quotation needs altering so as to read: "To him who hath shall be given—many chances to spend money in politics."

AGAINST GOULD.

Western Union Stockholders Dissatisfied With His Aggressive Policy.

NEW YORK, October 1.—[Special.]—Connected with the recent rise in Western Union stock is the interesting rumor that a little knot of capitalists is buying to control the property. It is currently supposed that Jay Gould owns a controlling interest, but this is not true. His present holdings are 250 000 shares, while there are 800 000 shares in all. It would be comparatively easy, therefore, for a syndicate to take the control from Mr. Gould, especially if Russell Sage or some other holder of a big block of stock were to join the movement. Sage is not likely to do so, however. He is loyal to Gould in all things, and more than once has gone down deep into his pocket to help Gould out when ready cash was needed.

Certain it is, however, that some big Western Union stockholders and directors are getting ready to protest against the present policy of trying to starve out the opposition at the expense of Western Union profits, and if the kickers get any encouragement there will be lively times at the next election. Mr. Gould, it seems, has become tired of buying up opposition companies. The old Mutual Union telegraph company obligations are a tremendous drag on the Western Union company, and the American Union and the Atlantic and Pacific are remembered when the interest on their bonds comes due, so it has been plain that Western Union cannot shoulder any more weak-kneed companies—or at least will not.

At present the telegraph war rages at ruinous rates for all companies. Between the chief commercial cities ten and fifteen cents is the price of a message, against fifty and seventy five cents two years ago. There is no profit in this business and it comprises the bulk of the day work. Mr Gould's theory has been that the opposition companies would have to go under, but the dividend party urges that we are on the eve of commercial prosperity and that there will be business for all. It proposes a combination or a pooling arrangement, and the ousting of the Goulds from the management in order that some sort of a deal may be made.

There are rumors, too, of a movement against Gould on the part of the holders of Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad securities, the accusation being that the property is continually milked for the benefit of the Missouri Pacific, to which it is leased. A large portion of the stock and bonds of this company are owned in Amsterdam, and from there will come the trouble if there is any. Mr Gould holds very little of the stock and very few of the bonds.

Attempts to oust Mr. Gould from control of his properties have as a rule been overwhelmingly unsuccessful.

The ladies of the Lewis house, assisted by Miss Allice Trammel, Willie and Lillie White, Ella Lewis, Josie Holmes, Mattie Gracie and Lottie Livesay, Grace and Blanche Gardner, of New Orleans, Carrie and Fay VanDeman, of Florida, and Miss Willie Swall, of Savannah, and Messrs D. K. McKarny, D. Buxelzer, Joe Walker, E. T. McAfee, H. Weatherly, E. W. Emmons, F. F. Reynolds, W. J. Townley, Carl and Fred VanDeman, Clarence Livesay, James Folger and W. C. Hoan, gave an entertainment consisting of tableax, charades and music for the benefit of the Charleston sufferers. The tableaux "Where are the Men?" "Where the Men Are," "Love and Duty," "Blindman's Buff," and the musical solo, the Nineteenth Century, by Miss Lewis. The gobble song by Miss VanDeman and Mr. Folger, deserve special mention. The audience was as large as the hotel parlor could accommodate. At the conclusion of the tableaux Colonel Glenn sold the girls at auction to the highest bidder. They were covered with sheets and a dummy was arranged so that the boys were to buy a girl or a dummy as his judgment was good or bad. Mr. E. T. McAfee did not know the difference, so he bought the girl of fashion. Miss Swall brought the highest price. Quite a neat sum was raised.

The evening's entertainment closed with a delightful dance. Music by Professor Baruss and Coleman's band.

THE SOCIAL WORLD.

EVENTS OF THE WEEK ON THE SOCIAL SIDE OF LIFE.

A Number of Pleasant Paragraphs About the Happenings in Society Circles—The Meetings of Clubs—Several Weddings Past and in Prospect—Notes of Various Sorts.

A very pleasant marriage took place on Thursday morning, September 30, at the residence of the bride's father, Dr. A. T. Bowne, of this city, at which time Miss Georgie E. Roswell was united in the bonds of wedlock to Mr. Will Baker, of Somerville, N. J. The bride has been a resident of Atlanta for about five years and has a large circle of admiring friends who extend their cordial congratulations. The groom is an energetic and prosperous business man, well known to the hardware trade of Atlanta. The happy pair left on the Air Line train for New York, whence they will go to Louisville, Ky., their future home. The wedding gifts were numerous and elegant.

On Thursday Mr. R. F. White, of Atlanta, was married to Miss Sallie Foster, in Cowpens, S. C. The marriage took place at the residence of Colonel Joel Foster, and was a brilliant affair. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. Ariel, of Cowpens. The marriage was witnessed by a large number of the friends of the happy couple. Thursday night an elegant reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. White, which was largely attended. The bride is a lady of refinement and culture, and belonged to an old and honored family; and since her entrance into society has been a decided favorite. Mr. White is one of Atlanta's most promising young men, and numbers among his friends many of the best people of the city. For several years he has been connected with the house of Fuller & Son, and no man in the city enjoys higher esteem and admiration on the part of his employers than Mr. White. After a visit to friends and relatives in Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. White will come to Atlanta, their future home. The presents received were handsome.

On Thursday afternoon, at the residence of the bride, on Walton street, Judge S. C. Burson, of Monroe, was married to Mrs. H. L. Fowler. The marriage took place in the presence of only a few friends, and was performed by Rev. N. Keff Smith. After the marriage a delightful dinner was given to the few friends present. At five o'clock Judge Burson and his bride left for Jacksonville and New Orleans, where they will spend several weeks with friends, after which they will return to Atlanta, their future home. Mrs. Fowler has lived for several years in the city, and is a lady of intelligence and culture. Judge Burson is a worthy gentleman, and has many strong friends in his old home, Monroe. The many friends of both extend their heartiest congratulations.

Cards are out for the marriage, on the 6th instant, of Miss Lilla Johnson, the accomplished daughter of the late Colonel Abda Johnson, to Mr. W. C. Bradley, of Charleston. The marriage will take place in the Methodist church at Cartersville. Miss Johnson resided in Atlanta for some years, and has many friends in the city who wish her happiness in her new life.

On Tuesday evening, at their home on Rawson street, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Shropshire celebrated their china wedding. The occasion was most delightful, and many friends were present to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Shropshire on their happy anniversary, and wish its return many times. Mr. and Mrs. Shropshire received their guests and entertained them in a charming manner. At nine o'clock supper was announced. On repairing to the dining room the guests found a most delicious repast, and the hour spent at supper was greatly enjoyed. After supper the evening was spent in pleasant conversation, and at a late hour the guests dispersed. The display of presents was magnificent and many were handsome and costly.

Dr. Dan H. Howell entertained quite a number of friends Wednesday evening at his home on Forsyth street. The evening was pleasantly spent by all. Mrs. Osborne of Augusta, gave some selections on the piano which were highly appreciated. Mrs. Osborne is one of Augusta's finest musicians and her playing Wednesday evening was excellent. Mrs. Barton N. Pattie sang several solos, which were received with a shower of applause. At 10 o'clock Dr. Howell invited his guests to the dining room, where a splendid supper was served. Dr. Howell entertains in a royal manner.

The second meeting of the Parnell social club will take place at the residence of Mr. J. J. Griffin, 169 Rawson street, between Pryor and Pulliam, on Thursday night next. An excellent programme has been arranged. The friends of the club are invited to attend.

On last Thursday evening the West-side social club met at the residence of Mrs. Mahers, on Mangum street. A most enjoyable programme, embracing music and recitations was arranged and the evening passed off most pleasantly. A feature of the evening's entertainment was a pathetic ballad, "She told me she loved me," which was faultlessly rendered by Mr. Harry Lynan, who won the unstinted applause of those present.

A most enjoyable entertainment was given at the residence of Misses Josie and Lizzie Connally, corner West Simpson and Ashby streets, on Thursday evening last, being the second meeting of the West Side Mission club. The programme was as follows:

"Little Drops of Water"—Miss Mollie Herren.
Song—"City of Light."
"The Drunkard's Woe"—Willie Coursey.
"Birdie's Song"—Miss Ida Bowie.
Reading—Willie Arnold.
"The Gambler's Wife"—Miss Jennie Coursey.
Declamation—"The Black Horse and His Rider"—Master Ben Pickett.
Song—"Fairy Moonlight."
Recitation—"The Bluebirds"—Miss Annie Arnold.
Reading—Miss Ola Pickett.
Recitation—"The Bachelor's Dream"—Mr. N. E. Stone.
Song—"Lady Touch Thy Harp Again."
Recitation—"Furl That Banner"—Miss Ida Elliott.
Stump Speech—"General Opinion of Everybody"—D. W. Green.
Song—"My Old Cottage Home."

At the conclusion of the programme the young people had a good time generally, playing all kinds of games, which lasted until a late hour. The next meeting will be held at the West Side Mission, Thursday night next.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Ylo club, last week, was a pleasant one. Several whose names were on the programme, failed to make their appearance, and this somewhat had a tendency to impair the interest of the occasion. However, those present enjoyed the evening by having volunteer recitations, music and speeches, some of which were quite interesting. The little mallet used by the president, while in the chair, was labeled with a very pretty gold piece in the shape of a half moon, and the words "Ylo Club" conspicuously inscribed thereon, making it attractive and appreciative.

This beautiful piece of workmanship was designed and presented by Mr. Cox, a young jeweler of this city. Mr. Walls was unanimously re-elected president, and Miss Jackson vice-president, while Miss Bremer was elected secretary.

The Ylo will have a meeting at Mr. Green Roberts's, 148 Luckie street, October 14th.

Preparations are being made for a grand concert at the First Methodist church on Tuesday, the 19th of this month. Since the dedication of the new organ, which is the finest in the city, no opportunity has been afforded of hearing its capabilities except as required by the church services. Mr. Salter will render a number of brilliant concert selections. Mrs. J. Weston Katzenberger will sing the magnificent air from Handels "Messiah" "I Know that my Redeemer Liveth." Mrs. Dows and Mrs. Salter will also contribute solos. Mr. Schultze will play a violin solo with organ accompaniment and a chorus limited by the capacity of the choir gallery will render several selections besides other solos and concerted pieces.

On Tuesday, September 7, Mr. J. E. Harding, of this city was united in marriage to Miss Mary McCoy, of Elliottville, New York. The wedding took place at the residence of the bride's father. At the happy couple were the recipients of a large number of handsome presents. Mr. Harding is one of our most substantial citizens, and has the best wishes and hearty congratulations of his many Atlanta friends. Miss Harding is the accomplished daughter of Mr. Charles McCoy, who is one of the most successful business men of Elliottville.

After an extended wedding tour of all the principal cities of the north, including a visit to Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Harding will arrive in Atlanta today at two o'clock p. m., and will be met at the depot by a party of the groom's friends, who will welcome his beautiful bride of the north to the sunny south.

Cards are out for the marriage of Mr. L. J. Nelson, at Jonesboro, to Miss Annie Dent, of Newnan, on October 7. The marriage will take place at the house of Colonel Dent, in Newnan. Both Miss Dent and Mr. Nelson are well known in Atlanta, and have many friends who extend congratulations.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

DELEGATES GATHERING FOR THE ANNUAL ASSEMBLY.

Master Workman Powderly on Hand—His Reception by a Church Organization—The Arrival of the Baltimore Delegation With a Band Escort—Hundreds on Hand, Etc.

RICHMOND, Va., October 3.—Delegates to the Knights of Labor national assembly have been arriving steadily all day, and many strange faces may be seen on the streets. Among the latest arrivals are delegations from district assembly 49, New York, who came by steamer to Newport News, and thence to Richmond by rail, and the Milwaukee delegation. The principal churches were well attended by visitors. Grand Master Workman Powderly attended high mass at St. Peter's cathedral. He was accompanied by Messrs. Mullen and Hayes of the national executive committee. After services he was invited to a meeting of the conference of St. Vincent de Paul, in the basement in the cathedral, where he was introduced to the members, who greeted him cordially. He addressed the conference briefly, thanking them for the kind reception. He alluded to the work of the society, and drew a comparison of its work and that of the order over which he presided, saying the object of both was in many respects similar, in that each aimed to ameliorate the troubles of their fellow-creatures, and to aid and elevate mankind.

Mr. Powderly has been kept busy the greater portion of the day in receiving visitors, but to-night has declined to see any one except Grand Secretary Turner and the members of the executive committee. The Canton, Md., delegation, numbering several hundred, arrived this afternoon on a steamer, having as an escort to the Baltimore delegation. They marched, preceded by a band, to the hotel, where they left the delegation, and the excursionists returned to the boat and left for Baltimore. There are already between eight or nine hundred delegates here, but a large number of new delegates. The executive committee has not held its session yet, but will do so to-morrow morning before the national assembly is called to order, the meeting will be for the arrangement of preliminaries.

GOULD AND MOROSINI.

Fifteen Years of Confidential Relations Ending in Coldness.

NEW YORK, October 3.—[Special.]—For fifteen years or more Signor G. P. Morosini was Jay Gould's confidential secretary, and those years Morosini made something like three millions of dollars by following Gould's advice. Morosini was in the Erie railroad offices on a starvation salary when he attracted Mr Gould's attention, and the story about his being of noble Italian birth and high education are fiction. The relations between Morosini and Gould were of the most confidential sort, and Morosini was as jealous of Gould's friendships and confidences as a lover of his sweetheart's glances. When therefore, Gould began to coach his son George, and George began to do some work that Morosini had been doing, Morosini begat a hatred for George Gould that his fiery Italian nature could not conceal. It brought on a quarrel, and when the brokerage of which Washington E. Connor, Morosini and Gould were members was dissolved Morosini quite naturally blew the Goulds to their offices. Indeed, the trouble has become so deep seated that Morosini no longer speaks pleasantly of Jay Gould.

Morosini's troubles with Gould and with his daughter have aged him very considerably and have made him petulant and disagreeable. He still has a desk in Connor's office where he sits daily, taking care of his own millions of dollars. The Goulds have never taken special pains to disavow any knowledge of Morosini's family affairs, and Mr. Washington E. Connor flew into a terrible rage the other day when the newspapers dragged his name into an alleged attempt to smuggle the Goulds' man's bride to Europe.

CLUBBED TO DEATH.

The Brutal Conduct of a New York Policeman.

NEW YORK, October 3.—Max Aronson, fifty years old, a Hester street grocer, was brutally clubbed by Policeman Wood, of this city, in his store on Wednesday last, and died today. The coroner was summoned and took his ante-mortem statement, but found the man unconscious and dying. According to the statement of his son, and the physician who attended the clubbing was one of the worst cases of police brutality reported for years. The boy tried to steal some fruit, but was ordered away by the old grocer. The mother interfered, and created a row. Policeman Wood, took the woman's part, and struck Aronson of striking her, following him and brutally clubbing him. His skull was fractured. The two sons interfered, and drove the officer way, called a physician. While the physician was caring for the wounded man, Policeman Wood returned with another officer, and brutally clubbed the old man again. The two were driven off, returned and took the old man away from the physician and locked him up, with the entire family for forty-five hours. The old man was not allowed medical attendance. After his release on bail, Max Aronson began to sink and died today.

TEMORS GROWING SCARCE.

Charleston Rapidly Resuming its Normal Conditions.

CHARLESTON, S. C., October 3.—There have been no shocks here in the past four hours, and only two or three slight ones at Summerville. The weather was pleasant today, and cool enough for light overcoats and fires. Religious services were held by the various congregations. The Presbyterians held a union meeting at Westminster, and the other congregations worshipped wherever they were able in church buildings.

Today about eight hundred excursionists arrived by the Atlantic coast line, many coming from Richmond, Washington and other more. The proceeds of the excursion will be turned over to the relief fund by the Atlantic coast line and connecting roads joining in the excursion.

General Vela on Hand.

MATAMORAS, Mex., October 3.—General Vela with six hundred men of the Twenty-sixth infantry, arrived here yesterday and will take command of the military department of the Rio Bravo tomorrow. The rest of his troops will shortly arrive. The Fourth infantry, now here, will, it is said, Luis Potesi, while the cavalry regiments will be formed in one corps under Colonels Hinojosa, and Colonel Cavasos and Hinojosa put on waiting orders. General Garcia this afternoon as traffic is resumed over the road will go to the City of Mexico, and thence to Tampico.

The Cotton Tax.

VICKSBURG, October 3.—The president of the national cotton planters' association has addressed a circular letter to the governors of the cotton states, asking their co-operation in efforts to secure the return of the cotton tax, million dollars, collected illegally during the war, and known as the "cotton tax."

The Second Louisiana District.

NEW ORLEANS, October 3.—The democrats of the second district have nominated Gen. Logan for congress.
